Is Made Permanent Chairman of Convention.

ALABAMAN MAKES STIRRING ADDRESS

It Is Received with the Utmost Enthusiasm.

Clayton's Voice Holds Out Well, Although Plainly Suffering from the Heat—He Can Be Heard in Every Part of the Great Auditorium. His Closing Words Are Cheered Enthusiastically.

Convention Auditorium, Denver, Col., July 9.—The Democratic "pile-driver," as the friends of Colonel James M. Guffey and Patrick McCarren have named the Bryan machine here, was working very smoothly today. Its managers, Ollie James, Jim Dahlman and Temporary Chairman Bell examined the several ropes and fixtures prior to setting today's session of the convention in motion, and declared them all right.

Consequently, there was a rush to the auditorium, and long before 10 o'clock, the hour fixed for the doors to open, every street leading to the mammoth structure, was packed with people, all anxious to get into the building and to witness the promised debate from the platform.

Despite the intense heat outside, and the general belief that it would be several hours and possibly not until tomorrow before nominations could be reached, the crowd piled into the building, filling every seat and standing in the topmost galleries.

Delegates Sleep Late.

The anxiety of the crowd, however, was not in any way communicated to the delegates. Most of them slept late. Last night's session, coupled with their exertions during the record-breaking demonstration in honor of Bryan, had wearied them, and they showed plainly by their manner as they slowly sauntered through the doors that they were in no hurry to start fireworks.

Bright-faced, well-dressed women, clad for the most part in soft, clinging, white material, made up the bulk of the crowd. And they were decidedly enthusiastic, applauding indiscriminately the band as it discoursed first northern and then southern airs. There was no sectionalism in this crowd, rather it was a "new west" cosmopolitan assemblage that had but the kindliest feelings for all.

The opening proceedings, as had been anticipated, were considerably delayed, and it was long after 11 o'clock when Chairman Bell began his regular ten-minute struggle to restore order and check the confusion.

Rabbi Offers Prayer.

Rabbi Emanuel Koch of Seattle, Washington, offered the opening prayer, in part as follows:

"Great God, weakness is arrogant, but strength is modest, and some who are assembled here in the interest of Democracy, once again begin our sessions in prayer to Thee.

"A generous host confers no general lien on future greatness. In every present moment a nation must vindicate its right to live.

"Vouchsafe, oh God, that we who are in convention assembled, may appreciate that noble action is the greatest praise we can offer Thee. Long after the delegates here shall have been gathered to their fathers, the truths they helped to proclaim shall last. But the spurious in their action shall be interred with their bones.

"Grant, oh God, that our political selves may be touched to higher issues by these national memories. Lest we forget, be these the monitors that tell us of the magnificence in political life of fealty to principle, of honor and character, and sincerity in manhood. And keeping close to those, when the day's work is ended, be ours the consciousness that Thou, judge of nations, art with us yet."

Can't Get Badges.

Bell recognized Delegate McWhiston of Pennsylvania, who declared that up to the present time he had been unable to secure badges and tickets for the eight Pennsylvania delegates seated by the convention last night. He declared attempts to get admission tickets and badges had failed.

Roger Sullivan, of Illinois, declared he believed McWhiston was in error, as the national committee had provided for the delegates. It was finally ordered that the eight members be admitted and seated with the delegation.

Senator McCreary, of Kentucky, was recognized to present the report of the committee on permanent organization. It named Congressman Henry D Clayton, of Alabama, as permanent chairman and made all of the other temporary officers permanent.

As soon as the report of permanent organization had been adopted, Chairman Bell, in a brief speech, thanked the national committee for honoring him as temporary chairman and thanked the convention for the manner in which it had treated him. He declared that it was an honor to the Pacific coast that would be appreciated in every one of the states there, saying his selection was a tribute to these localities, rather than to the individual. He was enthusiastically cheered as he concluded, the delegates rising and waving flags, hats and fans in a boisterous attestation of good will.

Clayton Escorted to Stand.

Bell then named as the committee to escort Permanent Chairman Clayton to the chair Senator McCreary, of Kentucky; Louis Nixon, of New York, and Judge John E. Raker, of California.

As Congressman Clayton started to speak three little girls, garbed in the stars and stripes, ascended the rostrum and presented him with magnificent bouquets of roses. This was a pleasing incident that was followed by an outburst of happy cheering and handclapping

The children, who were Irene, Catherine and Ada Smith, sisters, were lifted to the platform, and the portly Alabama statesman made a hit by kissing each of them.

Cries of "Hobson," "Where's Hobson?" then came from the crowd, who recognized that the permanent chairman was a fellow statesman of the hero of the Merrimac.

As soon as the noise caused by the incident had died down, Clayton began his speech.

Clayton's voice held out well, and although plainly suffering from the heat and his exertions, he could be distinctly heard in every corner of the auditorium as he concluded. His closing words were cheered enthusiastically by both galleries and delegates.

The band in the gallery played "Dixie" and this brought the delegates to their feet. As they did so, the doors in the rear were thrown open and a marching club headed by bands marched through.

At 1:52 the convention recessed till 7 o'clock this evening.

THE PRESIDENT WILL WRITE FOR SCRIBNER'S

Describing His Big Game Hunt in South Africa.

New York, July 9.—The prize so eagerly sought for by publishers throughout the United States, a contract with Theodore Roosevelt for a chronicle of his big game hunt in South Africa, has gone to the firm of Charles Scribner's Sons.

It has been finally announced that the contract was signed, following the second visit of representatives of the Scribner company to Sagamore Hill last week.

Other competitors were numerous, and fabulous sums were offered to the president for the exclusive use of his writings.

Scribner's stated that the president would not be paid "per word," but would receive royalty as they believed that his African series would be the "best sellers of the year."

AWFUL DEATH RATE IN RUSSIA

Twenty-Five to Thirty Per Cent. Dying of Smallpox.

St. Petersburg, July 9.—An appeal for government in checking the ravages of smallpox, which is devastating Russia from the White to the Black seas, and from the Baltic into Siberia, was made today by representatives of the affected districts. They declared that unless heroic efforts are taken, Russia will be afflicted with the worst scourge in history.

In several districts, the death rate is twenty-five to thirty per cent. The disease's rapid spread is due partly to the lack of cleanliness in the masses' personal habits and the laxity in forcing sanitary measures.

1,000 PEOPLE DROWNED IN ASIA MINOR THURSDAY

CONSTANTINOPLE, JULY 9.—ONE THOUSAND PEOPLE WERE DROWNED TODAY IN A FLOOD THAT WIPED OUT THE TOWN OF TOKAL, ON THE YESHILIRMAK RIVER IN ASIA MINOR, ACCORDING TO A NEWS AGENCY REPORT.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE CONVENTION

Denver Makes a Mardi Gras of Gathering.

THE END OF A VICE PRESIDENTIAL BOOM

Why Eagles Adorn Stand of the Speaker.

Denver Is Putting Out a Fancy Line of Cowboys and Cowgirls—The Holy Jumpers Come in for a Certain Amount of Notice—Trying To Recuperate—Nick Longworth in Role of Reporter.

Denver, Col., July 9.—Denver has begun to make a Mardi Gras out of the convention. Residents and visitors have been imbued with the carnival spirit and the police are trying to put a damper on it. Last night thousands of tin horns and other carnival paraphernalia were turned loose on the streets. A big touring automobile loaded with policemen started out to corral the noise-makers. Wherever a group of celebrators was noticed, a policeman hopped out of the automobile, gathered in the horns and other instruments and also the owners who resisted. Within eight blocks the tonneau of the automobile was heaped with the confiscated tin horns and "ticklers."

Hardly Eligible.

Franklin K. Lane's boom for the vice presidency departed in a manner amusing to most of the Democrats at Denver, but in a way that is an old story on the Pacific coast. A long while ago some one in California who admired Lane's record on the Interstate Commerce commission, started a boom for the vice presidency for him. A man from California reminded the other boosters that Lane was not a native born American, having originally been a British subject on Prince Edward island.

Cowboys and Cowgirls.

Denver was quick to take advantage of the eastern tenderfeet in the "wild and woolly." Cowboys and cowgirls—some real and some imitation—have been one of the sights on Denver's street that have particularly interested the visitors. The cowgirls ride range ponies and men's saddles and some of them even carry six-shooters. One photographer invites easterners to step in, don "chaps" spurs and gun and "send your picture as a cowboy back home."

The Holy Jumpers.

One of the side attractions is the performance of the "holy jumpers," a religious sect which started on the Pacific coast and has spread all over the country. The jumpers have recently adopted a uniform which includes bloomers and boots of the Cossack pattern. Every night a band of about twenty-five men and women jumpers parade the downtown streets and hold services on a prominent thoroughfare, where they sing, yell and jump.

Trying To Recuperate.

Members of the committee on credentials are not to be found in the "Oh-be-joyful" throngs in the hotel bars or elsewhere. They are trying to recuperate. The committee held a session lasting continuously from 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 10 o'clock the next morning. The session started with everyone in a fighting mood. It ended with half of them asleep. The committee adjourned until afternoon, but it was impossible to get the members together again, and the preparation of the report which was submitted to the committee was finally passed up to the chairman and secretary.

Nick Plays at Reporting.

One of the reporters observed at the evening session at the desks of the Chicago Tribune force was Representative Nicholas Longworth, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Want To Be Forced.

Senator "Bob" Taylor of Tennessee, in illustrating the attitude of some o fthe vice presidential possibilities, told the convention last night the story of the southern mountaineer who swore off on whisky. Shortly after taking the pledge, he brought a bottle home to his wife with the explanation that it was for medicinal uses only.

"You know, honey," said he to his wife, "I have sworn off and won't drink a drop. But, honey, if I should get sick and should not want to take it, you make me."

HENRY D. CLAYTON, PERMANENT CHAIRMAN OF THE DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESTON WILL REFUSE TO RUN

His Attorneys Fear That It Will Prejudice Case.

Reno, Nev., July 9.—Upon the advice of his attorneys, who fear that his candidacy will injure his chances in a new trial which they hope to secure for him, Martin R. Preston, nominated for president by the Socialist Labor party, and now serving a twenty-five-year sentence for murder here, will withdraw from the race. The announcement was given out at the state prison today.

Preston, who was convicted about five years ago of the murder of Antone Silva, a restaurant keeper at Goldfield, was immensely pleased with his nomination, and was preparing to conduct an elaborate correspondence school campaign from his cell, when his attorneys vetoed the project.

BELIEVED KILLED EIGHT WORKMEN

As the Result of a Cave-In Down at Dayton.

Dayton, O., July 8.—Eight workmen are believed to have been killed in a sewer trench cave-in in North Dayton this morning. Two bodies have been recovered. Men are working desperately to save the others in the hope that they may be alive.

The men whose bodies have been recovered are Ignace Cotolosora and Petro Domicello. The wives and children of the unfortunate victims are raving on the scene as if insane.

TWENTY KILLED IN FALLING BUILDING

And Twice as Many Are Badly Injured.

St. Petersburg, July 9.—Twenty persons were killed today and twice this number badly injured in the collapse of a large building in course of erection. Fifteen bodies have already been taken from the ruins and more than half a dozen are still unaccounted for. The actual number of deaths will not be known until the debris is cleared away.

THE MANAGEMENT AND ATTENDANTS

Of the Massillon State Hospital Are Exonerated by Report.

Columbus, O., July 8.—The management and attendants at the Massillon state hospital for the insane are exonerated of the charges of brutality to patients by the report of the committee of the board of state charities, which made an investigation on orders from the governor.

MICHAEL LEFFLER CLAIMED BY DEATH

Dies of Neuralgia of the Heart Near Agosta.

Agosta, July 8.—[Special.]—Michael Leffler, aged seventy-two years, died at his home three miles south of here, about 7 o'clock this morning. Death was due to neuralgia of the heart. The deceased leaves a wife and seven children.

FRED LINSLEY MEETS DEATH BY DROWNING

Ray H. Martin Receives Message Wednesday.

IS DROWNED WHILE BATHING AT MOBILE

Accident Occurs About Ten Days Ago, but Identity of the Victim Is Not Known at Once—Body Is Not Recovered, but Circumstances Establish the Identity.

Ray H. Martin received word, Wednesday, from his cousins, Misses Nellie and Carrie Linsley, at Hinsdale, Illinois, announcing the death of their brother, Fred Linsley, a former Marion boy.

The message states that Linsley was drowned while bathing at Mobile, Alabama, where he made his home. Up to the time of the receipt of the last message the body had not been recovered. It seems that Linsley was drowned about ten days ago and as soon as the tragedy was discovered his relatives were notified. At that time, however, there had been no positive identification. His employers have later identified him from circumstances connected with the drowning.

The deceased will be remembered as the son of the late T. H. Linsley, one of the city's business men of a number of years ago. The young man left here some years ago, going South, where he remained. Up to the time of his death he was employed with a sawmill contracting firm furnishing the government material. He was about forty years of age and unmarried.

A LONG LOST SON AT LAST LOCATED

Venerable Father Receives Welcome Letter.

The following article taken from the Fredericktown Free Press records a remarkable happening in that vicinity:

"The older residents of this vicinity will recall that the venerable Mr. Gus Hammond had a son, Edmund, who served during the civil war and some time afterward left home to secure evidence to get a pension. Nothing more was heard from him until about twenty-five years ago, when it was reported that he was run over by the cars.

A few days ago Postmaster Johnson received a letter signed Edmund Hammond from the soldier's home at Los Angeles, California, making inquiries for his father or members of the family. He immediately turned the letter over to Mr. Hammond, whose pleasure can be better imagined than described, and the long lost son is expected home in the near future. He is now sixty-three or sixty-four years old and his father ninety-one and both are looking forward to a joyful reunion."

MERCILESS SLAUGHTER

Rioting and Bloodshed Renewed at Tabriz.

FOOD FAMINE IS CAUSE OF OUTBREAK

Thousands of Citizens Start a Bread Riot.

Mobs of Starving People Make Raids on the Bakeries and Provision Houses—Soldiers and Cavalrymen Are Quick To Respond and Charge the Frantic Hunger-Mad Mobs—A Decided Revolutionary Spirit.

Odessa, July 9.—Rioting and bloodshed and the merciless slaughter by the Cossacks broke out in Tabriz again today. A food famine is the cause of the latest outbreak. Thousands of the citizens of the stricken city early this morning began a bread riot in the streets.

Mobs of starving people made raids on the bakeries and provision houses. The soldiers and cavalrymen were quick to respond and charged the frantic hunger-mad mobs.

The fight now raging is more bitter than in any of the previous encounters, for this time the rioters are goaded on by the knowledge that a more terrible death than that by the bayonets of the soldiers will follow their surrender.

Revolutionary Spirit.

The soldiers, including the horsemen of Rachin Khan, seemed not to realize that the men were not actuated by the revolutionary spirit in today's outbreaks, and were deaf to every appeal that all the people wanted was food.

Women and children joined in the rioting and fell with the men in the blood-stained streets. The casualties of the day will run into the hundreds, and no one can predict what the end will be, for a large part of the population is crazed with hunger and can no longer be held under repression. Tabriz has suffered from a partial famine for some week, even the plainest bread being a luxury in hundreds of homes. Since the investment of the city by the soldiers, however, the situation has become much more graver as the soldiers seized great supplies of food for themselves and are living in luxury, while hundreds of the population have been subsisting on black cakes made of grass, with a small admixture of flour.

THE SELECTION OF Mr. SHELDON

Causes Surprise in Many Republican Quarters.

Washington, July 9.—The appointment of George R. Sheldon as treasurer of the national Republican committee was a surprise and was accompanied by an element of mystery.

Preceding the meeting of the executive committee discussion of the treasurership had centered upon Representative McKinley of Illinois, treasurer of the Republican congressional committee. It was generally believed by the leaders of the party who have consulted with Mr. Taft that he desired to have Mr. McKinley serve as treasurer of the national committee, and had practically told him that he would have to submit to be "drafted" for that position.

It is stated that Mr. Sheldon's appointment was upon the recommendation of Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the committee since 1892. It is also stated that his selection has the approval of President Roosevelt, with whom he was a classmate at Harvard.

The selection of Mr. Hitchcock as chairman was expected, as the presence at Hot Springs of all the factions of the party who would be likely to make a fight against his appointment had not developed any purpose to oppose his selection. He was known to be the choice of Mr. Taft, and several of those who had been called in consultation with Mr. Taft subordinated their preferences in deference to the wishes of the presidential nominee.

The designation of Mr. Vorys to be in charge of the national campaign in Ohio is regarded as a solution of the embarrassment arising from the selection of Mr. Hitchcock in preference to Mr. Vorys. By this arrangement the campaign in Ohio will be in a sense separate from the balance of the country. Vorys will be accountable only to Mr. Taft.

Treasury Statement.

Washington, July 9.—Today's treasury statement: Receipts $2,115,143; expenditures $3,510,000.

REPUBLICANS ARE SCORED

In Address of the Permanent Chairman,

REPRESENTATIVE D. D. CLAYTON OF ALABAMA

President an Exceedingly Well Advertised Man.

And He Has Done a Great Deal of It Himself—Roosevelt and My Policies—Enormous Tribute Levied on the People by Trusts Behind the Wall of High Protection—The Duty of Democracy.

Denver, Col., July 9.—Upon assuming the office of permanent chairman of the Democratic national convention, Representative Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama, said in part:

"Mr. Chairman and Fellow Democrats: Let me thank you for the honor you have conferred upon me. This is a Democratic year. Democratic ideas are now popular. Doctrines always taught by our party and scoffed at by our opponents are now urged as a gospel of their own. Measures and policies of Democratic origin are now advocated by the leaders of the Republican party. It is no longer anarchistic to declare private monopoly to be indefensible, or that the great transportation companies should be regulated and controlled by public law. A demand for the revision of the tariff is no longer a threat to destroy our industrial system. Trusts are not to be tolerated even by the Republican party. We need not now enlarge on the list of Republican admissions and promises for election purposes only. The Republican party has made marked progress in promises to the people and much greater progress in aiding selfish interests and special privileges. That party, guided by expediency and campaign necessity, would camp this year on Democratic ground. It is apparent that if recent progress is to continue it does not require a very great sweep of the imagination to see written into a Republican platform four years hence those immortal words of Thomas Jefferson, 'Equal rights to all, special privileges to none.'

Republican Responsibility.

"The Republican party, having had full control of the federal government for more than a decade, must give an account of its stewardship. Its pretentious claims, largely without foundation, and largely exaggerated, will not suffice. Let honest investigation reveal the bad and defective laws passed by that party; vicious policies maintained; reforms rejected; the recent panic and its consequence; promises broken; dissimulation practiced; incompetency confessed by its failure to meet urgent public needs; and exhibiting this incompetency by the appointment of junketing commissions for the alleged purpose of advising that party, so long in control and of such boasted legislative wisdom, what legislation is required by the country. Against the Republican party, so dangerous and crafty, is a capable, determined, honest Democracy, in sympathy with all just public demands, and confidently asking in its behalf the candid public judgment. To that judgment the issue must be committed, and we unhesitatingly submit our cause to that fine and true sense for the right that we know distinguishes the American people.

"My Policies".

"In this quadrennial contest Mr. Roosevelt has identified himself with Mr. Taft. Mr. Taft has identified himself with Mr. Roosevelt. The Republican party has inseparably identified the two together. To praise one you must praise the other; to criticise one is to criticise his pursuing shadow. And so, I must say, if it should appear to any one that in noting and denouncing abuses and failures on the part of the present administration any license is assumed, urge the impossibility of separating the present occupant of the White House from his own anointed one.

"It has been made evident in the pending campaign that the Republicans will seek to conjure with the name of Roosevelt and will rely upon the president's policies as a prized asset. The president has advertised himself and his policies with a frequency and ability that surpasses the best efforts of the shrewdest press agent. A distinguished Republican, a former cabinet officer, once publicly proclaimed the president to be the greatest exponent of the art of advertising the world has known. The country has been told and not allowed to forget that, in his opinion, his energies have been devoted to the accomplishment of many high purposes, and that if his work is yet

PEOPLE OF MORRAL ENJOY BIG AFFAIR

Celebration Draws a Great Crowd to That Place.

FAMILY REUNION HELD AT VILLAGE

Members of Washburn-Taylor Families Gather and Pass a Delightful Day—People from a Distance Are in Attendance—Notes Gathered During the Past Week.

Morral, July 9.—[Special.]—The Fourth of July celebration here was a success. The rain somewhat marred the pleasure of the evening, but after it stopped raining and the stars came out, the band soon called the people who had fled to places of shelter back to the grove and the program was carried out. Misses Cora Moon and Clayta Norton gave nice recitations. The band played a march, "The Little Prince," and eight young ladies gave a fine drill. A "Hayseed Drill" was to have been a feature of the evening, but as some of the boys having parts could not be found it was abandoned, and the drill by the young ladies was repeated by request. The fireworks were the finest ever seen here. Quite a crowd came down from Harpster in the evening to help celebrate. The Morral ball team won two games, one from a Marion team and one from Nevada.

FIREMAN WITHERAL CRUSHED TO DEATH

Is Pinched Under a Switch Engine at Huntington.

ENGINEER BECK SLIGHTLY INJURED

Body of Unfortunate Fireman Is Not Recovered for Several Hours—P. J. O'Neil Begins His Duties as a Supervisor in the Service of the Erie—Some Railroad Notes.

As the result of an engine turning over in the Huntington yards, Engineer Beck was injured and Fireman Witheral was killed, Wednesday evening, about 9:30. Both of the men were well known in local railroad circles. The men were running a switch engine and in making a switch on a curve the engine was upset. The fireman was pinned under the engine and was not taken out until hours afterward, when life was extinct. The engineer escaped with slight injuries, consisting of cuts and bruises.

P. J. O'Neil, who succeeded the late James M. Ryan as supervisor on the Erie with headquarters at Dayton made his first official visit to Marion Wednesday. Mr. O'Neil is well known in the local railroad circles having long been an inspector under Mr. Ryan. He is known as a thoroughly competent man and has a large circle of friends along the line who were pleased to learn of his promotion.

¶ People have learned that of all the special sales during the year—this is the greatest.

¶ With this big, popular merchandising center, it is a time of clearing stocks in every department—when staple domestics are as unmercilessly cut in price as the fashionable stuffs.

¶ This year, conditions will compel our giving customers a veritable harvest of bargains.

¶ The date is set, and salespeople throughout the store are busy arranging stocks, remarking and measuring goods for this sale, Saturday, July 18.

¶ Wait for it—then you'll be satisfied.

UHLER & PHILLIPS.

Taken to Workhouse.

Colonel Summers, arrested at Zanesville for jumping a board bill and fined five dollars and costs and sentenced to ninety days in the Columbus workhouse, was taken to the Capital City institution, Thursday. Summers was arrested on complaint of Mrs. Eliza Webb, a widow, who conducts a boarding-house on north Main street. He owed her a bill of more than $40.

The First Wheat.

John Travis, of Green Camp township, brought the first of this year's wheat to market, at Green Camp, Wednesday. It was bought by the Marion Milling & Grain company. Mr. Travis averaged about thirty bushels to the acre and the wheat was very good.

THE NEWS HAS GONE FORTH

Frank Bros. & Co's.

First July Sale in Their New Building is to Commence Saturday, July 11th.

A little less than four months ago we opened The Big Store. We bought practically entire new stocks in every department, as we had very few goods to move. We bought this merchandise at a time when prices had reached the lowest point, we bought immense quantities, we filled every nook and crook in the new store with the newest, the most reliable dry good, etc., that money could purchase. Quite natural that we made many mistakes, we overbought in most every department, that's the reason why we're announcing this Mammoth July Sale, to reduce stocks to their normal conditions to close out all summer materials.

Now, the store that sets the pace for low prices will, during the remainder of July, sell Dry Goods, Ready-to-Wear Apparel, Carpets, Rugs—everything in the whole store at lower prices that you have ever seen here—and lower than the biggest city stores can name.

Lay work aside for a day—reap some of the Bargains this sale will afford.

and the undeveloped resources of the country added to the wealth of the world No rational man can be opposed to corporations as such and the assertion that the Democratic party is waging an indiscriminate warfare against this convenient form of transacting business has no foundation in fact It is the abuse only of corporate power that we seek to eliminate

We are confronted with the inquiry what assurance has the Republican party given that it will use the forces at its command to restore the people to their rights? In its Chicago platform it did not make even a decent pretense of championing the people's cause and the proceedings of that convention are glaringly insincere It was noted that the elements were present in that gathering one with sufficient votes to adopt a platform and name its candidate for president the other powerful enough if unwilling that platform and tie the hands of the nominee The distinguishing feature of the Chicago platform is its effrontery promise to do a lot of things that the Republican party has heretofore failed to do That party went to Chicago fresh from the halls of congress where an overwhelming Republican majority in both branches is enabled it to pass and adopt any legislation that it chose Does the Republican party believe that it can be absolved from its declaration of duty by an empty promise to do in the future what it has wilfully failed to do in the past?

Some one suggested that this convention should publish an indictment against the Republican party We can probably expedite the proceedings by entering the plea of guilty that is contained in the Chicago platform simply changing the words We will to the words We did not to conform to the admitted facts We then have the following confession of guilt

"We did not revise the tariff

"We did not amend the anti trust laws to secure greater effectiveness in the prosecution of criminal monopolies

We did not add a single line to the interstate commerce law giving the federal government supervision over the issues of stocks and bonds by interstate carriers

We did not enact a currency measure that would mitigate the evils of a financial panic such as has recently protected the country under a Republican administration'

'We did not limit the opportunities for abusing the writ of injunction

"We did not establish postal savings banks

We did not establish a bureau of mines and mining

We did not admit into the union the territories of New Mexico and Arizona as separate states

'The last congress was in session during a financial crisis when innumerable banking institutions preferring a holiday to a funeral closed their doors and filled the minds of the millions of depositors with anxiety and fear The sentiment in favor of postal savings banks which had been steadily growing in this country became almost universal during the recent panic So insistent became the voice of the people that the president sent a special message to congress urging the establishment of postal savings banks where the earnings of our people might be safely deposited under the direct control and responsibility of the federal government and where no speculating banker cashier or any member of the board of directors could eat up the savings of years

'The United States senate showed its hearty sympath with this popular demand and its profound respect for the president by adjourning the senate while the message was being read while over in the house of representatives they refused to suspend the roll call of the house to receive the communication which had been sent there from the White House

'The Chicago platform points with pride to the passage of a child labor law for the District of Columbia Let the Republican party go further than the enactment of penal laws and in the name of humanity use its vast energies for the removal of the conditions that are forcing our children into the labor market It is the reign of monopoly that is emptying our school houses and filling the sweat shops with child labor and this same system of monopoly is fast limiting the opportunities for independent livelihood among those who are forced into the industrial field and thus it is doubly blighting that hope of youth which in former stages of our national growth opened in promise of honor and independence to every child upon our soil

The most palpable instance of the insincerity of the Chicago platform is found in its declaration respecting the issuance of injunctions It would have been entitled to more respect if it had omitted all mention of it At session after session of congress labor has pleaded for relief from the abuses of injunctions but its appeals have fallen on deaf ears and there has been no indication that remedial legislation of any character would be enacted The oligarchy in house and senate has decided that nothing shall be done to weaken any advantage that corporations have gained in labor disputes

The charge that the courts are being assailed is simply made for the purpose of diverting attention from the real issue Heretofore it has not been considered treason or an unwarrantable attack upon the honor of the courts to define their jurisdiction prescribe their procedure restrict their processes and generally to fix the bounds with which judicial functions shall be exercised

It makes no difference whether the courts are acting in excess of their jurisdiction or strictly within their delegated powers In either case the people have a right to throw additional safeguards around human liberty

There can be no reflection upon the honesty of the courts in the passage of a measure that will define the limit powers of the federal judiciary within such bounds as the people of the United States through the legislative branches of their government may decide This Democratic convention must frankly and unequivocally pledge itself to such legislation as will prevent the writ of injunction from being converted into an instrument of oppression

We have something to do in this convention besides pointing out evils and telling the Republican party to task for the part it has played in creating and perpetuating abuses Democracy is once more called to the front to battle for the secret principles of self government It must wage an uncompromising war for the return of the government to the hands of the people and this means that the phalanx of special interest must be broken With the power and opportunity to carry out Democratic principles we will be called upon to revise our tariff laws in the interests of the whole people This issue cannot be disposed of by the assertion that the Republican party also stands for tariff reform Republican revision and Democratic revision are two different things

The Democratic idea is that where tariff enables the trusts to maintain a system of extortion the duty should be removed from all trust made goods so that competition from abroad may compel reasonable prices to our own people There is a vast difference between the protection of American industries and the protection of criminal monopolies

The expense of our government even when most economically administered will always require substantial tariff rates for the customs duties will always be our chief source of revenue The amount and distribution of these rates must always be delivered along equitable lines Keeping in view the greatest happiness to the greatest number and particularly withholding the shelter of the tariff from those who use it not for legitimate self protection but for the criminal purpose of extorting the last dollar from the American consumer

The corrupt use of large sums of money in political campaigns is largely responsible for the subversion of the people's will at the polls The masses are awakening to a realization of the great power of gold in contests that ought to be determined according to the character of nominees and the soundness and morality of political issues and there is a general demand for publicity in the collection and use of campaign funds so that our citizens may know whether a political party has purchased its way into office or has won its victories by honest means

In the Chicago convention a minority report of the committee on resolutions containing a declaration in favor of publicity was overwhelmingly defeated upon a roll call of the convention and the Republican party placed itself squarely upon record in favor of concealing the names of the contributors and the amounts of their subscriptions

It is eminently proper that this convention should define the Democratic attitude toward the regulation of trans portation companies and call the attention of the country to the indisputable fact that it was only after years of Democratic effort that an amendment was made to the interstate commerce law authorizing the commission to establish reasonable rates whenever it appeared that an existing schedule was unjust and unreasonable The national platforms of the Republican party remained silent upon this great question for years and the fact that the necessary change was advocated by a Republican president who succeeded only through the aid of the Democrats in both branches of congress in placing the amendment upon our statute books does not affect the credit to which our party is entitled for having worked persistently for such an enactment Further amendment to our laws giving the federal government supervision over the issuance of railroad stocks and bonds is demanded

We search in vain for one syllable in the Chicago platform pledging the Republican party to retrenchment and reform and it is by men coincidence that has given us a billion dollar session of congress on the eve of a presidential election and the possible revision of the tariff

So long as we maintain the present method of electing United States senators we cannot hope that the upper chamber of congress will reflect the public will The Democratic party will continue to labor for the direct election of United States senators and it appeals to the voters of all districts to elect members of the different state legislatures who will pledge themselves to vote for no candidate for the United States senate that is not in favor of this reform The affirmative position of the Democratic party upon these great questions will be made clear during the impending campaign and disclaiming all subterfuges it will speak in a language that cannot be misunderstood Its voice will ring with a genuine love for humanity and the chance of success will never be sought to stifle its declarations Let each party declare itself in this convention upon the strong contrast between that which we here put forward and that which was enacted at Chicago Let any man take the temperature of the Chicago platform and discover if he can any sign of human warmth Not a single sentiment is there to redeem it from the intensely commercial hue and the will of the people shall manifest itself for the organization of the house of representatives as well as to letter a letter that will reach our people and exhibit gratitude to the well beings and happiness of all mankind'

50,000 MEN GO TO WORK MONDAY

They Answer Whistle at the Carnegie Works

MANY OTHER MILLS RESUME FULL TIME

There Is Actually a Shortage of Workmen On

Operations Are Being Hampered in the Mining and Coke Districts New Pittsburg by Inability To Obtain Sufficient Men—Hundreds of Foreigners Go Home Last Winter and Fail To Return This Year

Pittsburg Pa July 6 When the whistle blew at the Carnegie mills fifty thousand men answered for work today Not only the Carnegie but many other mills resumed full time

In the mining and coke districts several thousand men returned to labor A remarkable condition exists in these districts There is actually a shortage of workmen and operations are being hampered by inability to obtain sufficient men Hundreds of foreigners went home last winter and failed to return and this has resulted in a great shortage of unskilled labor

That the railroads are feeling the resumption of business is evidenced by the fact that all the lines making East bins their headquarters have ordered their repair shops on double time The sudden return of prosperity has caught many of the roads short of cars and a big demand for them is expected when the crops start to move this fall

THE DEPARTURE VERY IMPOSING

Battleship Fleet Begins Its Long Journey

THOUSANDS CHEER GREAT SPECTACLE

Great Guns Thunder Farewells from Forts

The Fleet Is Led by the Flagship Connecticut Which Gives a Departing Salute to Its Country—The Announced Itinerary of the Fleet's Cruise to Australia and Manila Special Service Squadron

San Francisco July 7—Between shore lines bauled with thousands of cheering people and to a martial accompaniment of thundering guns which belched forth their deafening farewells from Fort Baker and Fort Mason the battleship fleet passed through Golden Gate this afternoon and stood out to sea in a magnificent and imposing line on its course toward Honolulu and the Far East

The farewell to the fleet vividly recalled the magnificent reception it was given when two months ago it steamed into San Francisco at the end of its cruise around the Horn

Hundreds of Sailing Craft

Hundreds of steam and sailing craft piled with wildly cheering people formed in lines on either side of the channel while the neighboring hill sides were black with cheering humanity

Led by the flagship Connecticut the ponderous ships leaving their anchorages swung gracefully into line and taking their positions at regular intervals steamed slowly out toward the Golden Gate in single column

When opposite Fort Baker a puff of smoke rent with flame spurted from the bridge deck of the Connecticut and the crash of a gun spoke out the last farewell of the fleet to its own country

The Itinerary

The announced itinerary cruise of the fleet to Australia and Asiatic waters extends only to Manila and is as follows

Port	Arrival	Departure
San Francisco	———	July 7
Honolulu	July 16	July 22
Auckland	August 9	August 15
Sydney	August 20	August 27
Melbourne	August 29	Sept 5
Albany
Australia	Sept 11	Sept 17
Manila	October 1	October 10
Yokohama
Japan	October 17	October 24
Amoy, China,
(2d squadron)	Oct 29	Nov 4
Manila
(1st squadron)	Oct 31	———
Manila
(2d squadron)	Nov 7	———

Special Service Squadron

The battleships Maine and Alabama preceding the fleet as a special service squadron sailed from San Francisco for Manila June 8

The Pacific armored cruiser squadron accompanied by the fast protected cruiser Charleston will tow the flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers which accompanied the fleet from the Pacific flotilla to Samoa sailing from San Francisco next month

The battleships Mississippi Idaho New Hampshire and Indiana with the armored cruisers North Carolina and Montana and a complement of auxiliaries will take station in the Mediterranean during September according to the present plans of the department

The Milwaukee a sister ship of the Charleston will cruise to Honolulu the latter part of August and will probably be joined there by the St Louis

Twenty-Two Battleships

By October 1 there will be twenty two battleships ten armored cruisers four protected cruisers of high speed two flotillas of torpedo craft a screen of scout ships and a balancing complement of naval auxiliaries flying the American flag in foreign waters

No such extensive movement of its fighting ships to foreign stations has ever before been attempted by a naval power

Under the present orders there will not be a single effective fighting ship on the home stations this fall

It is predicted that unless some unforseen diplomatic situation arises the ships will steam into Hampton Roads February 22

Scarlet fever having broken out on the battleship Nebraska she will not leave with the others of the fleet today on the world cruise but will be detained in quarantine here

Message by President

Oyster Bay July 7—President Roosevelt today sent the following message to Rear Admiral Charles S Sperry, commander of the American fleet

I send to you and to the officers and enlisted men under you my heartiest good wishes on the eve of your departure That the American people can trust to skilled efficiency and devotion to duty of its representatives on the fleet has been abundantly shown by the trip around South America and I know will be made equally manifest on the return trip across the Pacific Indian and Atlantic oceans

You have in a peculiar sense the honor of the United States in your keeping and therefore no body of men in the world enjoy at this moment a greater privilege or carry a heavier responsibility

NATHAN WEBB DIES VERY UNEXPECTEDLY

The End Comes at Home of Son Near Richwood.

AGED RESIDENT OF COMMUNITY

Miss Vera Willoughby Is Given a Very Pleasant Surprise at the Home of Sister, Mrs. George Smith, at Richwood—Some Notes Gathered at the Village.

Richwood, July 7.—[Special.]—Nathan Webb, who made his home with his son, Albert Webb, just southwest of Richwood, died suddenly, Thursday, from a general breaking down due to the infirmities of age. He was eighty-four years old. Mr. Webb was apparently in his usual health and the end came while he was walking around the yard at his son's home. He leaves three children, Albert Webb, who lives near Richwood; Addie Webb, of Lima, and Miss Ora Webb, of Marion. He was a broher of Zimri Webb, one of the well-known residents of Union county. Funeral services were held from the late home Friday afternoon, Rev. V. H. Rollins, of Claiborne, officiating. The remains were taken to Trenton, Licking county, for interment.

Miss Vera Willoughby, of Marion, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. George Smith, of south Fulton street, was very pleasantly surprised, Thursday afternoon, by a number of Richwood young ladies, who were her former school-mates in Richwood. The hours were happily spent in out-of-door amusements and nice refreshments were served.

Mrs. J. Ed. Robinson, of Columbus, accompanied by her brother, Harry Blake, of Cleveland, were guests, Thursday, of relatives and friends in Richwood, where both formerly resided.

The members of the Dutch club, together with a number of guests, spent Thursday afternoon picnicking at Eagle park, at Magnetic Springs. The out-of-town guests were Miss Elizabeth Hoyt, of Delaware, and Miss Harriet Butler, of Plain City.

Miss Olive Sinkey, of Columbus, visited her mother and brother here during the past week.

Mrs. L. H. Osborne, of Milford Center, spent the past week in Richwood with her aunt, Mrs Lycurgus Ross, and other relatives.

Mrs. A. Clayton and family have moved into the Mulligan property on west Ottawa street.

Miss Harriet Butler, of Plain City, visited her aunt, Mrs. P. E. Barnes, a few days last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huffman and Mrs. Anna Vaughan have been guests for several days past of their brother, A. H. Vaughan, and other relatives in Piqua.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wynegar, who recently came here from Columbus, moved, last week, into the Ledley property on west Ottawa street. Mr. Wynegar is proprietor of a barber shop here.

Miss Mary Hastings, of Marysville, spent Saturday and Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hastings.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Curry, of Wadsworth, were guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Georgia Curry, during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Al C. Eggert, who were married two weeks ago in Columbus, returned to Richwood Friday from a trip through the East. They will make their home here.

Miss Bessie Mills, of LaRue, spent a few days with Miss Hazel Robinson, during the past week.

Miss Gertrude Moffett, of York, spent the past week with Mrs. Elizabeth Haines.

Robert Mealey, of Columbus, spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Margaret Mealey.

Miss Kathryn Andrews, of Mansfield, was the guest, Saturday and Sunday, of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Andrews.

Mr. and Mrs. Howe Woodruff and daughter, Miss Oweka, of Columbus, were guests of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Woodruff, during the past week.

B. F. Fuller, of West Mansfield, visited his daughter, Mrs. P. C. Biddle, during the past week.

Dr. James Cutler and Mrs. Georgia Curry, of Richwood, and Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Curry, of Wadsworth, spent Saturday picnicking at Magnetic Springs.

Charles P. Marriott, of Columbus, spent the Fourth here with his mother, Mrs. Lovina Marriott.

Arthur Sloop, of Columbus, spent Saturday and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Sloop.

Robert Lenox, of Columbus, visited his father, O. P. Lenox, and his brother, R. W. Lenox, during the past week.

Warren Mumford, who spent the past several weeks in Richwood with his aunts, Mrs. Jason Case and Mrs. W. C. Hastings, returned, Thursday, from a short visit with his cousin, Mrs. Oscar Markert, of Marion, and left in the evening for his home in Harriman, Tennessee.

Mrs. L. C. Beem and Miss Ethel Wright were in Columbus several days last week with Miss Rose G. Beem, who is receiving treatment at Grant hospital.

Mrs. S. A. Lawrence and daughter, Miss May, of Grenada, Mississippi, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Elliott, west of Richwood, during the past several days.

Miss Elizabeth Hoyt, of Delaware, spent the past week with Miss Hazel Husted, of north Franklin street.

Miss Clara Ross, of Sharon, Kentucky, has been the guest of her cousin, Miss Estella Ross, of south Franklin street, during the past several days.

Mrs. E. J. Howland, who makes her home here with her daughter, Mrs. S. A. McNeil, and who has been an invalid for over a year, is in a very serious condition. Mrs. Howland is past ninety years of age.

Miss Marion Kuhn, of Omaha, Nebraska, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. E. H. Miller, and other relatives in Richwood.

Mrs. C. R. Leech and children, of National Bridge, Virginia; Mr. and Mrs. Ora Jacobs, of Fredericktown, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Carr, of Hutchinson, Kansas, have returned to their homes after a pleasant visit here with Charles H. Jacobs.

Miss Hazel Husted entertained a number of friends at her home on north Franklin street, Friday evening, in honor of her guest, Miss Elizabeth Hoyt, of Delaware.

ELMER BURCH MEETS DEATH AT QUARRIES

Terrible Accident at Owens Tuesday Morning.

LAD IS CRUSHED IN HOPPER OF STONE

It Is Supposed He Jumps Into Twelve Tons of Moving Stone To Secure His Hat and Is Caught in Such a Manner That He Is Carried Down and Crushed to Death.

Fifteen-year-old Elmer Burch, son of Samuel Burch, residing on Thompson street, this city, was fatally crushed in a hopper containing twelve tons of stone at the quarries of John D. Owens & Son at Owens, Tuesday morning at 7:30 o'clock. The first inkling the workmen had of the boy's horrible fate was the appearance of his hat, which came through the hopper into the storage bin with the tons of stone perhaps two or three minutes before the crushed body of the lad was noticed. The body came through feet first. He died shortly after 12 o'clock Tuesday.

The boy worked, Monday, as an assistant to his father in the quarries. Tuesday he was notworking, but had gone to the quarries with his father. When the workmen were about to empty one of the big stone hoppers into a storage bin the boy was seen sitting on a beam at the top of the hopper. He was warned of his danger, it is said, and directed to get down. The supposition is that his hat blew off on the stone and he leaped down to get it. In a twinkling he was drawn into the tons of crushed stone before he could utter a cry.

The boy's father was working in another part of the quarries at the time of the accident. A telephone communication was sent to this city for the Hess & Markert ambulance to remove the injured boy to the Central Emergency hospital. When Dr. James W. McMurray arrived at Owens and examined the boy he said that death was certain and the order for the ambulance was canceled. The boy did not regain consciousness. He was horribly crushed about the breast and waist. His mother went to the scene of the accident, that morning, and was present when he died. She was almost prostrated.

The body was brought to this city, Tuesday afternoon, and taken to the Burch home.

To Save Arbutus in Vermont.

Arbutus hunters have not returned laden with trophies this season thus far, at least in the Ludlow section of Vermont. Very little of the beautiful blossom has been gathered, but it will be remembered that large quantities of it were secured very late last season. Lovers of the arbutus are endeavoring to prevent its wholesale destruction through carelessness in picking it. It is important if the presence of this early and most beautiful flower is to be retained that the stem bearing the blossom is cut off instead of broken, as the latter process injures the plant and not infrequently uproots it and destroys its life. It ought not to require much persuasion, says the Ludlow Tribune, to induce adults to exercise care in gathering arbutus, and the children, who thoroughly enjoy the hunt for it, should be instructed in the same direction.

German Nature Theater.

Unique plans are afoot for the construction of a permanent outdoor theater amid the picturesque wooded hills of the grand duchy of Saxe-Weimar. In the vicinity of Eisenach, in Germany, where it was Richard Wagner's original intention to establish the Festspiel theater, now located at Baireuth Eisenach is also the seat of the celebrated Wartburg castle, immortalized by Martin Luther and within whose walls the story of the "Meistersinger of Nuremberg" is laid. A large sum has already been subscribed for the "nature theater" project, and its eventual realization is regarded as certain.

Horses, condition compared with an average, 95 per cent.

Colts, number compared with an average, 93 per cent.

Cattle, condition compared with an average, 97 per cent.

Calves, number compared with an average, 94 per cent.

Wool, clip compared with last year, 93 per cent.

The wheat harvest is now in progress and from the returns received from the official correspondents of the department it is estimated that the total yield will be eighty-six per cent. of a full average crop. While this is a decline of eight per cent. in prospect since the issuance of the June report, it is not discouraging, as, compared with the crop of 1907 at this time, it is seven per cent. above the prospect estimate then reported; hence the average yield an acre should exceed last year's harvest. Compared with last year the acreage is eighty-eight per cent. and the total product for the state will not fall far short of the crop of 1907. Wheat came out of winter in much better condition than was anticipated, and the weather conditions following being favorable, the plant showed improvement with each month's report until the present time. Frequent rainfalls, followed by long-continued drouth during the past month, have tended to reduce the prospect. There is also some complaint of damage by fly and other insects, while many of the correspondents note that the wheat is struck with rust. The estimated area of wheat plowed up this spring was so meager that no report is made of same, and approximately the entire area originally seeded remained for the harvest.

Oats show a decline in prospect of twelve per cent. during the past month, being now estimated at seventy-seven per cent. compared with an average. The correspondents generally note that the decline is due to drouth.

The estimated area planted to corn is ninety-seven per cent. compared with 1907 area, or 2,859,354 acres. Its growing condition is quite satisfactory, being reported at eighty-seven per cent. compared with an average. Corn generally is small, as the planting was late, and its growth is not uniform, due to irregularity in time of planting. The crop has suffered from drouth during the past month. The damage reported by cut and grub worms is small.

The estimated area planted to potatoes is reported at 115,272 acres, or ninety-six per cent. in comparison with the area planted in 1907. The crop is suffering for rain, although its present condition is fair, being estimated at eighty-four per cent. compared with an average.

Pastures generally are in fine condition.

Compared with an average the condition of horses and cattle is reported at ninety-five and ninety-seven per cent., respectively.

Family Reunion.

The descendants of Henry and Katherine Edwards of Columbus enjoyed a reunion at the home of Hornby Irey near Espyville, July 4. The day was given to various social diversions and a fine dinner was served.

DR. DARLINGTON ON HEART DISEASE

The Doctor Regards Disease of the Heart as a National Menace.

That the effect produced by high strung nervous tension induced by modern methods of social and business competition must be regarded as a causative factor in the production of functional and ultimately organic cardiac disease was the point made the other day by Dr. Thomas Darlington, commissioner of health of New York city, at the twenty-fifth annual meeting of the American Climatological association, which assembled at Boston under the presidency of Dr. Thomas D Coleman of Augusta, Ga.

"During the early years of our national life," said Dr. Darlington, "physical labor was the rule and essential in the upbuilding of the country, but with it, hand in hand, went the normal and wholesome conditions of living imposed by the limitations of a young country and the virile qualifications inherent in the hardy settler.

"Then, with the advent of what we are pleased to call the concomitant attributes of civilization, came the age of social and mental unrest, vast commercial opportunities and competition. We are paying our prices for our social and material advancement.

"Out of 275,000 children examined in the public schools of New York city more than 70 per cent were found to be suffering from some physical abnormality—all handicapped at the very beginning of their life struggle—and of these children nearly 3,500 had heart disease in some form. There is a wide gulf between the three 'R's' which were taught in the country school fifty years ago and the extensive and overburdening system of education now placed before the children. Economic conditions today are also bearing hard upon their physical well being.

"Children acquire by subtle inference the thought that the ultimate measure of gain is the acquisition of the 'almighty dollar.' With such a goal the race starts early in life and competition is the relentless pacemaker.

"In this connection we must take account of the modern tendency to overindulgence in athletic sports. It is well known that overactivity in this direction, with the physical strain resulting from keenly contested games, leaves its imprint on the physical status of the immature or under developed youth. Insurance companies consider athletes 'poor risks,' and this attitude is well grounded. It would seem that the medical profession might well take cognizance of this matter to ascertain what bearing it has, if any, upon this question of the increase in the prevalence of and death rate from heart disease.

"Osler, the master mind in medicine, has given to his profession its master word, and in it is held, if not entirely at least partially, the solution of our difficulties.

"'Equanimity' is the need of the times and the need of the people. Let us teach it: let us live according to its law. In calmness of mind and evenness of purpose we may find the panacea the world is seeking to combat, the ills arising from mental and physical unrest."

Path of Roses For Actress.

Miss Ethel Barrymore, the actress, literally walked on roses at a "beauty banquet" given by society people in her honor at the Auditorium in Chicago the other day. From the threshold of the banquet room to her place of honor at the table was a carpet made from the petals of American Beauty roses. Miss Barrymore trod the long pathway ankle deep in rose leaves. The idea of the luncheon was the exaltation of beauty in women, in art, in music.

The "Merry Widow" Hat.

Its shadow lies across the land.
It hides the view on every hand.
It dips and rises like a cloud
Upon the shoulders of the crowd.
It sails, it soars, it slides, it swings,
With bloom and braid and birds and wings
It jams the street, it freights the air.
It blocks the throbbing thoroughfare.
It fills the matinee with fright
Lest all the stage should sink from sight
But under it when beauty goes,
Ah, let it rip from rim to rose!

Petition for Free Turnpike Road.

To the Honorable Board of Commissioners of Marion County, Ohio:

Gentlemen:—The undersigned land owners, owing lands lying within the bound of a proposed and hereinafter described route of a Free Turn Pike Road, respectfully ask that your honorable body do appoint commissioners at a special session to be held Friday, July 31st, 1908, at 1 o'clock p. m., to lay out and establish a Free Turn Pike Road pursuant to the provisions of the statute under Chapter (7) seven, "One Mile Assessment Pikes," Revised Statutes of Ohio, Section 4774 to 1828, inclusive, and all acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto upon the following route between the following points within the County of Marion, State of Ohio, to-wit:

Beginning in the road leading east and west between Sections 21 and 28, Grand Prairie Township, Marion County, Ohio, where the Marion and Upper Sandusky Turn Pike intersects the same; thence west on or near the section line between Sections 21, 28, 20, 29, 19 and 30, Grand Prairie township, and Sections 24, 25, 23 and 26, Salt Rock Township, to the quarter section line running north and south through the west half of the southwest quarter of section 23 Salt Rock township, a distance of 3¾ miles, more or less, and there terminating.

We would represent that we are residents of Marion County, that we own lands that lie within the bounds of said Free Turn Pike road. We further request that an annual levy be made of extra tax upon all the property within said bounds for the period of not exceeding 25 years and in amount not exceeding ten mills upon the dollar valuation, each year, as may be deemed necessary by the Commissioners appointed to construct said road and for such orders in the premises as are authorized by law.

Dated May 11th, 1908.

PETITION FOR FREE TURNPIKE ROAD.

To the Honorable Board of Commissioners of Marion County, Ohio.

Gentlemen:—

The undersigned land owners, owning lands lying within the bound of a proposed and herein after described route of a Free Turn Pike Road, respectfully ask that your honorable body do appoint Commissioners at a special session to be held Monday, July 20th, 1908, at 1 o'clock p. m., to lay out and establish a Free Turnpike road pursuant to the provisions of the statue, under Title 7, Chapter (7) seven, "One Mile Assessment Pikes," Revised Statutes of Ohio, Section 4774 to 4828, inclusive, and all acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto upon the following points within the County of Marion, State of Ohio, to-wit:

Beginning in the center of The Brush Ridge and Morral Free Turnpike road at the northeast corner of Section 19, and northwest corner of Section 20, in Grand Prairie township, Marion county, Ohio; thence south on a public highway between Sections 19 and 20, aforesaid, to the center of a public highway running east and west between Sections 19 and 30 and Sections 20 and 29, in said Grand Prairie township, Marion county, Ohio, and there terminate. Said point of termination being at the southeast corner of said Section 19, and the southwest corner of said Section 20, and the length of said proposed improvement being 1 mile, more or less.

We would represent that we are residents of Marion county, that we own lands that lie within the bounds of said Free Turnpike Road. We further request than an annual levy be made of extra tax upon all the property within said bounds for the period of not exceeding 25 years and in amount not exceeding ten mills upon the dollar valuation, each year, as may be deemed necessary by the Commissioners appointed to construct said road and for such orders in the premises as are authorized by law.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF OHIO.

JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the state of Ohio relative to the passage of bills.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio:

SECTION 1. A proposition shall be submitted to the electors of this state at the next election for members of the general assembly, to amend the constitution of the state of Ohio so that sections 18 to 32, both inclusive, of article II, shall respectively be numbered as sections 19 to 33; and sections 16 and 18 of such article be so amended as to read as follows:

ARTICLE II.

Sec. 16. Every bill shall be fully and distinctly read on three different days; unless, in case of urgency, three-fourths of the members elected to the house in which it shall be pending, shall dispense with this rule; but the reading of a bill on its final passage shall in no case be dispensed with. No bill shall contain more than one subject, which shall be clearly expressed in its title; and no law shall be revived or amended, unless the new act contain the entire act revived, or the section or sections amended; and the section or sections so amended shall be repealed.

Sec. 18. Every bill passed by the general assembly shall, before it can become a law, be presented to the governor for his approval. If he approve it, he can [shall] sign it. If he do not approve it, he shall send it with his objections in writing, to the house in which it originated which may then reconsider the vote on its passage. If two-thirds of the members elected to that house then agree to repass the bill, it shall be sent, with the objections of the governor, to the other house which may also reconsider the vote on its passage. If two-thirds of the members elected to that house then agree to repass it, it shall become a law, notwithstanding the objections of the governor. If a bill shall not be returned by the governor within ten days, Sundays excepted, after being presented to him, it shall become a law, unless the general assembly by adjournment prevent its return; in which case, it shall become a law unless, within ten days after such adjournment, it shall be filed by him, with his objections, in the office of the secretary of state. The governor may disapprove any item or items in any bill, making an appropriation of money, and the item or items, so disapproved, shall be stricken therefrom, unless repassed in the manner herein prescribed for the repassage of a bill.

SEC. 2. This amendment shall take effect on the first day of January, A. D. 1909.

C. A. THOMPSON,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
ANDREW L. HARRIS,
President of the Senate.

Adopted March 20, 1906.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE CONSTITUTION OF OHIO.

JOINT RESOLUTION

To ammend section two of article twelve of the Constitution of Ohio.

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio:

SECTION 1. That a proposition shall be submitted to the electors of the state of Ohio, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, 1908, to amend section two of article twelve of the constitution of the state of Ohio, so that it shall read as follows:

ARTICLE XII.

FINANCE AND TAXATION.

Sec. 2. The General Assembly shall have power to establish and maintain an equitable system for raising state and local revenue. It may classify the subjects of taxation so far as their differences justify the same in order to secure a just return from each. All taxes and other charges shall be imposed for public purposes, only and shall be just to each subject. The power of taxation shall never be surrendered, suspended or contracted away. Bonds of the state of Ohio, bonds of any city, village, hamlet, county or township in this state and bonds issued in behalf of the public schools of Ohio and the means of instruction in connection therewith, burying grounds, public school houses, houses used exclusively for public worship, institutions of purely public charity, public property used exclusively for any public purpose, and personal property to an amount not exceeding in value $200, for each individual, may, by general laws, be exempted from taxation; but all such laws shall be subject to alteration or repeal; and the value of all property, so exempted, shall, from time to time, be ascertained and published as may be directed by law.

SECTION 2. All taxes and exemptions in force when this amendment is adopted shall remain in force, in the same manner and to the same extent, unless and until otherwise directed by statute.

REV. F. E. ZECHIEL BEGINS WORK IN CITY

New Pastor of First Reformed Church

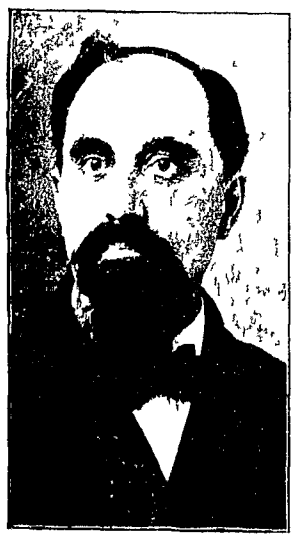
COMES TO MARION IN SERVICE OF THE KING

Rev Charles L Smith at the First Christian Church—New Minister Begins His Duties—A Conference Held at the Wesley M E Church Other Services in the City

Rev F L Zechiel delivered his introductory sermons at the First Reformed church Sunday and was heard with interest by two large audiences

In the morning Rev Mr Zechiel spoke in German and in the evening delivered his discourse in English The sermon of the evening was based on Ephisians 6 18 20

The speaker in his opening remarks referred to the ambassadors serving under ord is as the representative of certain peoples or causes He said that he came to Marion as an ambassador with the word and appearing in the interest of the Lord Jesus Christ He said he came to



REV F E ZECHIEL

Marion on the King's business and as the servant of the Lord ready to accept the responsibilities laid upon him

Continuing the speaker stated that those of his congregation should consider well the force of the mission to which they have called him He further said that he was not done to visit half of the King not done to visit those of the church but to endeavor to draw others within the fold He brought no new revelation but the old book and such thoughts as the Lord may direct him to deliver The speaker further said that he wanted to talk to those within his field of labor in a way that he could be understood Lives should be moulded by the word and should be in harmony with the book God has given The minister asked his people not to be a hindrance but a help in the work Not to keep the children away from services but to help him in winning their affections and interesting them in the work

In conclusion the pastor asked his people to attend church regularly and not to expect him to do good preaching to empty pews He said there should be hunger for the word manifest on the part of all and then would be no trouble in keeping up interest and accomplishing the thing which the Lord would have done

Preaches First Sermon

Rev Charles L Smith the new pastor of the First Christian church from Altoona Pennsylvania preached his first sermon Sunday to a large and appreciative audience The new pastor greatly impressed his auditors and gave a fine discourse His subject The Relation of the Pastor and His Congregation was chosen from Hebrews 13 17

Lift up the hands that hang down and the palsied knees and make straight paths for your feet that that which is lame be not turned out of the way but rather be healed

Following out his theme Mr Smith said that our purpose in life was to do the work of God and any other purpose is unworthy and should fail He thought that when the church is degraded into a mutual admiration society it ceased to be a church of Christ and was false in its missions He thought it further important to help each others hard as in every business there are obstacles and they can be surmounted if the proper efforts are put forth He thought it important to avoid the chance of any hindrances interfering in the work for the Lord Failure should be overcome by a determination for success He referred to the honor of having chosen pastor and solicited his audience that the cause be made a common one In fact to that degree in which this is done will the work be successful he said

The speaker declared it was necessary to convert sinners and edify saints He considered this a duty directed by the Lord

By our work and continual presence let us do our best and our God shall not fail to give us our due reward,' was his concluding admonition

Conference Held

The conference for the first quarter of the year was held Saturday evening at Wesley M E church The meeting was well attended and replete with good reports from the various committees The reports showed that departments of the church were highly successful in the work for he year and an unusual interest was manifested

Rev C E Kelly was invited by unanimous vote to return to the pastorate and his work was highly commended

The following board of stewards and committees for the ensuing year were elected

THE HEAVENS IN JULY ARE INTERESTING TO STUDENTS

The Constellations of Summer Are Now Plainly in View and Those Interested Can Now Enjoy Study

The summer constellations are now to be seen at their best and we shall find that they afford an interesting evening's study even though the observer may have nothing more to aid his vision than an ordinary field glass

At first rejecting the aid of even such a simple instrument we may use our eyes alone and seek to become acquainted with the principal constellations

Let us begin by facing due south Right before us is Scorpio and one of the easiest groups in the sky to recognize We never see it in its full glory for it is far south of the celestial equator and the brightness of its stars is dimmed by the absorption of the great thickness of air through which we must look to see them But even so it is a very fine sight on one of the clear evenings which are frequent if this section is peculiarly if the moon is out of the way

The bright red star Antares with a smaller one on each side of it the vertical line of three second magnitude stars on the right and the long tail on the left which curves down close to the horizon and then rises again to end in two bright stars the whole configuration bearing a striking resemblance to the creature for which it is named

To the right of Scorpio are some of the stars of Centaurus whose brightest ones we never see To the left is Sagittarius which contains the small but conspicuous Milk Dipper The Greek letters appear to be assigned to the stars of this constellation almost at random departing very far indeed from the usual order of brightness

Capricornus and Aquarius which are just rising can be seen better later in the evening or at the same hour later in the year Above them however, is a group of constellations which can be well studied now Aquila the eagle contains one first magnitude star Altair which has a smaller one on each side of it somewhat like Antares but can be distinguished from that star not only by its place in the sky but because it is white while Antares is extremely red

North of this are two small but ancient constellations Delphinus and Sagitta The latter bears considerable resemblance to the arrow which it is supposed to represent The former does not look much like a dolphin but the little group of four third magnitude stars sometimes called 'Job's coffin' is unmistakable

North of these is the much larger and finer group of Cygnus and above this is Lyra whose brightest star Vega is more than twice as brilliant as Altair—that is to our eyes It is really more than twice as far away as Altair and its intrinsic brilliancy must be fully tenfold as great

The three brightest stars of Cepheus which lie still farther north form a very oblique triangle Beyond them we come to the familiar zigzag line of Cassiopeia low in the north

The Milky Way runs all through these constellations Note particularly the dark spaces across it in Cygnus looking almost as if it was obscured by patches of cloud the doubling of its stream all the way thence to the southern horizon and the great star clouds is Sagittarius which make the region between this constellation and Aquila one of the most remarkable parts of the sky

The constellations to the west of those we have described are already more or less familiar from their descriptions in recent months Hercules Corona and Bootes are clustered round the zenith Ophiuchus and Serpens are south of them and also Libra and Virgo southwest Leo is now setting in the west Ursa Major is high up above the pole

Before turning to our glasses we may test our eyesight upon some wide double stars now visible in different parts of the sky First take the star Zeta in Ursa Major This has a fifth magnitude companion at a distance of eleven and one half minutes of arc which is very easily seen on a clear night by an ordinarily good eye If this test is passed turn next to Capricorn when the star has a much closer companion distant six minutes or so Scorpio where the star in the tail below Antares is a close but similar pair

A more difficult pair is found in Cygnus Between the stars a and b are two smaller ones near together The southernmost and brightest of these has a companion which though not much nearer than those of the first named stars is a good deal fainter and so forms a severer test for the eye

Finally let us turn to Lyra The northernmost of the two small stars close to Vega is a still closer pair its two components being separated by three and one half minutes of arc To see this double without optical aid requires an unusually keen eye but the smallest opera glass reveals it at once With a good field glass the two stars seem widely separated With such aid we may now turn to Draco Near the two bright stars b and g are two others which form with them an irregular quadrilateral The faintest of these is double but a much closer pair than any at which we have so far looked the distance being only one minute of arc This is about as close a pair as an ordinary field glass will divide but from the standpoint of the telescope observer it is very wide Indeed with large telescopes a pair would not be considered really close unless its distance was less than 1 100 of that separating the two stars of which we are speaking

The Planets

Mercury is in inferior conjunction with the sun on the 4th and Venus on the 5th at which times these planets change from morning to morning stars Neither of them can be seen with the naked eye till the latter part of the month Mercury reaches elongation on the 25th and may then be seen before daybreak rising about 3 30 a m

Venus gets well away from the sun before the end of July and is conspicuous in the morning sky rising about 2 a m Mars is slowly approaching conjunction and is lost in the twilight all through the month

Jupiter is evening star in Cancer setting at about 9 20 p m on the 1st and before 8 p m on the 31st

Saturn is in quadrature with the sun on the 1st and is observable in the small hours of the morning

Uranus comes to opposition on the 7th and is well observable He is just visible to the naked eye on a clear dark night and may easily be picked up with a field glass He may be found just south of the star in Sagittarii This star has two fainter neighbors which form with it a small obtuse triangle Uranus at the time of opposition makes a nearly equilateral triangle with the left and two of these three His slow eastward motion relative to the stars will make the identification certain

Neptune is in conjunction with the sun on the 6th and therefore invisible

The Moon

First quarter occurs at p m on the 6th full moon at 1 p m on the 14th last quarter 7 a m on the 20th and new moon at 2 a m on the 28th The moon is nearest us on the 14th and farthest off on the 2d and again on the 30th She is in conjunction with Uranus on the 14th Saturn on the 18th Venus on the 4th Mercury and Neptune on the 26th Mars on the 28th and Jupiter on the 29th —By Henry Russell of Princeton University observatory in Scientific American

MASS MEETING HELD AT EPWORTH CHURCH

All the Churches of the City Are Represented

A LOCAL OPTION CAMPAIGN OPENED

Big Church Is Packed with People Interested in Proposed Campaign Against the Saloons in Marion County—Contributions To Carry on Educational Work

A mass meeting in which all churches of the city took part was held in the Epworth M E church Sunday evening and the first temperance gun for a local option campaign to be waged until an election is held this fall was fired In spite of the uncomfortably warm evening the large auditorium and galleries of the church were crowded with men and women interested in the launching of a county option campaign Every member of the audience held a fan and used it vigorously throughout the evening which was very enthusiastic Rev D H Bailey the pastor remarked upon the healthy condition of the weather with regard to the heat but he assured his hearers that the campaign for the elimination of the saloons in Marion county would be equally as warm

Following a selection by the Men's Glee club and prayer by Rev G E Barnard pastor of the First Baptist church Rev George M Rourke pastor of the First Presbyterian church was introduced by Rev Mr Bailey who announced that Rev Mr Rourke would make the principal address of the evening

The speaker made an eloquent plea for the purity of the home and higher ideals in the business world He declared that the saloon business belonged to hell And to hell it must go he shouted He made it clear that he did not mean that the saloon keeper belonged in hell but his business did he reiterated with emphasis

Any man who put his business ahead of morals will be guilty of accepting a bribe The speaker repeated this several times during the course of his address He scored the weak kneed church member who could not decide between right and wrong Christians he said must be for local option It is a question of right and wrong He named a number of towns much larger than Marion that are dry and then treasuries are not depleted either as is the city treasury of Marion Among the towns he named were Rockford and Galesburg Illinois Macon and Atlanta Georgia East Liverpool and others In these towns local option had carried and the people would not go back to the saloon for anything

If Marion had gone dry two years ago what would the wet element have been saying now? They would have declared the empty houses and the general depression in business today are due to voting the saloons out of business The speaker declared that by voting out the saloon keepers the taxes would be reduced instead of increased

Rev Mr Bailey followed Rev Rourke He said he did not wish to appear sensational He remarked that Sunday was known to his only as stainless flag day then from a flask he proceeded to unwrap four half pint bottle of whisky which he said had been purchased on stainless flag day in the city of Marion Each bottle was labeled with the name of the saloon where it had been purchased and the hour One by one the speaker brought these bottles to view and placed them on the pulpit They were purchased at the following places he said Hotel Nordica P H Neidig Abel & Conrad and O'Keefe Brothers

The speaker ridiculed the idea of the statement of some that the farmer had no right to say what we in the city should do The farmer helps to pay for the murderial of maintaining the poor house and to feed he proper—all caused by the liquor traffic—just the same as the man who lives in town and therefore has a right to help say to city clean if its own citizens do not do it

Before concluding his remarks Rev Mr Bailey about 00 or 100 people to sign a pledge to contribute a dollar or more for the campaign of education that must be waged

Others who were called upon for remarks after ended were Joseph Cheney representing the workingmen I C Smith representing the insurance men D C Nelson representing the business men Fred L Cathcart representing the legal profession and George H Ihler president of the county association

When Rev Mr Bailey asked for an expression of loyalty to the cause as represented by Mr Ihler practically every man in the church arose

The speakers were frequently interrupted by loud applause throughout the meeting

Picnic in Country

The Young Married People's circle of the Free Baptist church picnicked Saturday at the Claxton Dix home three miles east of the city The day was agreeably spent the time being passed in the enjoyment of all sorts of games and out door pastimes

WHEN A NEW ERA DAWNS

By William T Ellis

The International Sunday-School Lesson for July 12 Is—"Saul Chosen King" I Samuel 9 and 10

A man cannot see the spectacle of which he himself is a part Times change without the knowledge of those who help change them New eras dawn and men never know it until afterward It is unfortunate that they who shape destinies can not see to what end they are working Probably when our children of children's children come on the scene they will regard the first decade of the twentieth century a period of transformation and momentous Even so it was in that portion of the history of the little kingdom of Israel which the Sunday schools are today studying the entire course of the nation's life was changing and nobody knew it except one man

Seen in perspective this interesting story reveals what is equally true of our own land and time although the actors in the events were unwitting of their significance Yet above all and overruling everything was the omnipotent providence of Jehovah the

Destiny that shapes our ends
Rough hew them as we will

Guiding Samuel and Saul and the congregation of the people was the wisdom of him who is significantly called King of Kings We may not escape the divine sovereignty no matter what our waywardness and perversity

Seeking Asses Finds Throne

Like the deathless folk tales which fed the heart of youth for centuries this page from the history of Israel is full of romance and compelling human interest We find a big country youth who like Ajax Towers over all with head and shoulders broad going forth in search of asses which had strayed from his father's farm Of good blood the young man is still only a shy modest awkward country man with no thought beyond his own neighborhood affairs He was a choice young man in character and diligent in business He kept up the search for three days until a large territory had been covered and his supply of bread exhausted He had the good sense to know that there comes a time to cease a fruitless search and to regard other issues for he said Come and let us return lest my father leave off caring for the asses and be anxious for us How much more filial this than the example of that immortal little idiot Casabianca'

One last resort remained They were in the city of the seer Samuel, perhaps he could shed light on their perplexity By a succession of apparently trivial incidents—the story reads like life—they were brought into contact with Samuel Now there were two searches going on simultaneously Saul was seeking his father's stock and Samuel was seeking God's man for the throne of Israel The former in the pursuit of commonplace duty proved to be the object of Samuel's search God never selected a man for promotion from any other position than the place of duty Had Saul been indifferent to those asses he would have remained an inefficient country bumpkin to the end They alone are in the line of advancement who are in the path of duty Thrones are reached by way of daily deeds well done

There are myriads of young men today undergoing experience that ensued for Saul after meeting Samuel Incidentally the young man was reassured concerning the lost asses they had been found Then he was told that he should spend the day with Samuel eating with him and on the morrow the seer would tell him all that was in his heart Overwhelmed and perplexed by these honors and by the prophet's warm words Saul protested oriental fashion his unworthiness

The mystery of these unexpected proceedings deepened when Samuel took him to the feast at which thirty guests were assembled and gave him the seat of honor To make these conspicuous attentions more marked—for ceremonial usages were rigidly observed then—the choicest morsel of food was given to the gigantic young stranger whose appetite needed no tempting The feast over Samuel communed with Saul upon the housetop What idiot and eager searching of the depths of this young man followed! Only Samuel knew the issues which hinged upon the way Saul should stand the test So his wisdom was sharpened by his patriotism as he plied the unsuspecting youth with questions and led him on to reveal the deepest impulses of his heart Saul did not for a moment imagine the purpose of the interview we seldom realize our critical hours until they are long past

Like the triumphant graduates of last month Saul passed He was found fit in that Samuel saw him to be possessed of kingly possibilities He had the qualities needed by Israel's first ruler Whether he should develop these or go astray was for the future to show At present he stands regal in mien in mind and in heart

Making Over a Man

To be in the inner councils of the rulers of state must be a peculiar pleasure a big and manly delight

California Alligator Farm

One thousand alligators ranging from the length of a lead pencil to monsters that could crush a man in their jaws arrived at Los Angeles a few days ago from the southwestern part of Louisiana and were landed loose in a new gator farm in east Los Angeles They were brought in a specially arranged freight car over the Southern Pacific The increasing demand for alligator leather which is converted into pocketbooks and hand bags makes the consignment of saurians valuable and accounts for the new industry started in Los Angeles

The reason a woman spends her money the way is her husband needn't give her any more till she does

MRS. GEORGE TIPTON SUES FOR A DIVORCE

Extreme Cruelty and Gross Neglect Is Charged.

MAN STRIKES AND DESERTS HIS WIFE

Tipton Is Denied Divorce from His Wife Some Time Ago—Samuel H. DeLong Asks Money for an Expert Auditing of a Concern's Books. Some Court Notes.

Charging George Tipton with extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty, Mary Tipton, through her attorneys, Jacoby & Donithen, instituted an action for a divorce in the common pleas court, Thursday afternoon. She also asks reasonable alimony and restoration to her former name of Fisk, the name of a former husband.

The Tiptons were married May 2, 1904. They have no children. The plaintiff claims in 1906 the defendant struck her and threatened her with death. April 15, 1907, she avers that he deserted her, but that in February, 1908, she took him back because of his entreaties. He remained with her only a month, however, and again deserted her.

Less than a year ago Tipton applied for a divorce, but was denied a decree. He charged her with gross neglect of duty.

Samuel H. DeLong, receiver for the J. P. Barthouse Grain & Seed company, at Morral, through Attorneys Mouser & Quigley and Jacoby & Donithen, filed a motion in the common pleas court, Thursday, July 2, asking permission to expend not more than $200 for the auditing of the company's books and accounts by experts. He sets up that a part of the assets are on the books and accounts and that to arrive at the exact liability of the various parties indebted to the company it will be necessary for experts to audit the books, the condition of which is too complicated for the receiver.

Raymond H. Martin, administrator of the estate of Henry A. Martin through his attorneys Crissinger & Guthery, filed a petition in the common pleas court, Friday, July 3, in which he seeks to require the Michigan Mutual Life Insurance company, of Detroit, to make answer and to set up its interest in certain real estate owned by the decedent. In default of an answer the court is asked to forever bar the company from any claim to the real estate, which was bought in 1892 by Mr. Martin from the company for $3,000. During his life time it is set up that the decedent fully complied with all the terms of a written contract. The plaintiff seeks to sell the property and have the proceeds distributed.

In his suit against the insurance company, in which Martin as plaintiff also makes himself one of the defendants together with his wife, Beatrice, states that at the time of his father's death he was indebted by way of being surety for the Implement Manufacturing company on a great many notes, amounting to $8,000 and that the Implement Manufacturing company is insolvent and that this indebtedness which is of long standing, can only be paid by assessing the stockholders their double liability. He further avers that his father had in his own name $5,300 of the company's stock, which probably will be assessed to pay the indebtedness, and for that reason the estate is involved in a sum approximately amounting to $13,300, while the cost of administration will be $300, and the personal estate amounts to $894.62.

C. B. Churchill, receiver for the South Side Building & Supply company, has been granted the right to sell the real estate, a decree of sale being ordered by Judge B. G. Young, of the common pleas court.

Perry Adams Gets a Job.

William F. Stockman filed an affidavit in the mayor's court, Saturday, charging Perry Adams with stealing $10 from him. Stockman was in a West End saloon when Adams asked him to buy a drink. Stockman said he had nothing but a $10 bill and when he showed Adams his purse the latter grabbed the bill and ran stating he would get it changed and return. When arraigned before the mayor Monday morning Adams pleaded guilty to the charge, although he stated that he returned, but could not find Stockman. He was fined $25 and the costs in the case and sentenced to thirty days in the workhouse.

Through Attorneys Scofield, Durfee & Scofield, the Marion National bank filed a petition in the common pleas court, Tuesday, to assess the stockholders of the Implement Manufacturing company for the payment of indebtedness amounting to about $20,000. The Implement Manufacturing company and the stockholders are made defendants. The petition recites that the suit is begun on behalf of the plaintiff and other creditors, although the Marion National bank is named as the only plaintiff. There are 526 subscribed shares of stock, according to the petition, which also asks that the company be declared insolvent. A receiver was named for the company several months ago.

In the suit of John Selanders against the National Union Fire Insurance company, of Pittsburg, the defendant, through its attorneys, Fred W. Warner, of this city, and J. W. Mooney, of Columbus, filed an answer in the common pleas court, Tuesday. It is set up that the plaintiff at the time of the issuing of the policy falsely misrepresented that he was the sole owner of the property, which rendered the policy void because of said false misrepresentation. It is further claimed that the plaintiff failed to comply with another provision of the policy and make a written report of his loss to the company within sixty days.

AN AGED TRAVELER IS STRICKEN TODAY

William Edwards Suffers Stroke of Paralysis.

Agosta, July 7.—[Special.]—William Edwards, aged seventy-seven years, and walking to Hartford City, Indiana, was stricken by paralysis here, this morning, after having walked here from Marion, and is in a very serious condition. The aged man, who was quite well dressed, but without money, stated that he had no home and was enroute to the home of a friend. He was removed to the residence of Isaac Stanton, where he is being given the necessary attention pending an investigation of his case.

CHARLES TRUMBO IS DROWNED IN CREEK

He Steps into a Hole in the Bed of Rush Creek.

YOUNG COMPANION ALMOST OVERCOME

Tries To Save Victim, Who Struggles So Hard That Rescue Is Impossible—Body Is Recovered After an Hour by Using a Rake—The Funeral Arrangements.

Agosta, July 6.—[Special.]—Seventeen-year-old Charles Trumbo, the adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Trumbo, residing three miles south of here was drowned in Rush creek, near this place, Sunday morning. The body was recovered an hour later.

Sunday morning about 8 o'clock young Trumbo and Lawrence Baker, aged sixteen, of Arbelia, who is visiting at the Trumbo home, went to the creek to go in swimming. Both were in the water when the Trumbo lad stepped off into a washout in the river bed. He sank over his head Young Baker grabbed him by the hair and tried to pull him out. The Trumbo boy struggled so violently that his companion was almost overcome. He, too, would have drowned had not he broken away from him and gained the shore. Half dressing the youth ran to the Trumbo home and gave the alarm. The lad's body was recovered by the use of a rake. He never rose after sinking the first time, according to the statement of his youthful companion.

The funeral service will be held at the Trumbo home, Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

REFEREE GIVES DECISION MONDAY

A Local Plant To Continue in Operation.

A motion made by creditors of the Marion Manufacturing Company of Ohio to discontinue the operation of the plant and to sell the company's assets immediately was decided by Referee in Bankruptcy Carey, of Upper Sandusky, Monday. The referee held that the company in view of its declaration that it was operating and making money could continue operation until October 15, when the season will have been closed.

While here, Monday, Referee Carey heard the bankruptcy case of Jacob Webber, the former south Main street saloonist. P. Kelly was appointed trustee.

REV. J. P. CURRIN NAMED AS CHAPLAIN

Infirmary Directors Act Under a New Law.

OFFICIAL MINISTER FOR MARION COUNTY

Pastor Will Officiate at All Funerals at the Infirmary—He Will Receive the Sum of $150 a Year for His Services—The Appointment Made Monday.

At a meeting of the infirmary directors held at their office in the court-house, Monday afternoon, Rev. J. P. Currin, pastor of the First Baptist church, was elected chaplain of the infirmary at a salary of $150 a year. As chaplain of the infirmary, Rev. Mr. Currin will bear the title of being the county's official minister, the first office of the kind in the history of the county. His appointment is in accordance with a law passed by the last legislature. Among his duties will be to officiate at all funerals at the infirmary. Heretofore, people dying at this institution, when they had no relatives or friends to take charge of the funeral, were buried with a brief service conducted by infirmary officials or the superintendent.

Rev. Mr. Currin appeared at the meeting of the infirmary directors. Justice Charles H. Conley reminded the directors of the new law and recommended Rev. Mr. Currin for the office. Upon receiving the appointment, the minister thanked the directors.

THE LIMA RACES FOR THIS MONTH

Lima Will Follow Springfield in Ohio Circuit.

The Lima races, the big event in harness horse circles of the summer, will be held this year at the beautiful plant of the Lima company, July 14, 15, 16 and 17. Lima follows Springfield in the Ohio racing circuit, which is offering $17,600 in purses for the trotters and pacers. Horse lovers of this city are making arrangements to attend the Lima races, the first day of which will be known as "Trolley Day," with the crack events of the week scheduled for competition—the 2:25 pace, the 2:30 trot and 2:12 pace—assuring patrons of seeing the very best products of the green classes, the same horses now entered in all the big stakes of the country.

A STOLEN BICYCLE CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Robert Cheney Locates His Wheel Monday.

ARRESTS FOLLOW IN SHORT ORDER

Albert Rue Is Taken into Custody on Charge of Stealing the Wheel After Purchaser of the Machine Reveals His Identity—Some Notes of the Local Police Court.

Monday afternoon, the bicycle of Robert G Cheney was stolen. In the evening, while walking on south Main street, Cheney saw his wheel standing in front of a second-hand store conducted by A. D. Mitchell. "That's my bicycle," said Cheney to the proprietor, and started to take possession of the wheel. Mitchell declared that the bicycle did not belong to Cheney and refused to give it up. Cheney then went to police headquarters and secured an officer. Accompanied by Officer Wilhelm he returned to the second-hand store. Still, Mitchell refused to give up the wheel, although Officer Wilhelm volunteered to identify it as the property of Mr. Cheney. Mitchell became abusive, whereupon the officer declared that he would arrest him for receiving and concealing stolen property. Wilhelm returned to police headquarters and filed an affidavit against Mitchell, who made his appearance at the police station before Officer Wilhelm could return. While in the mayor's court, Officer Wilhelm read the affidavit to Mitchell and placed him under arrest.

Fearing that he would receive a heavy fine, Mitchell promised to furnish information that would lead to the arrest of the man who stole the bicycle if the mayor would let him down with a light fine. He said that he had bought the bicycle of Albert Rue, who formerly worked for him, for two dollars. A warrant was then issued for Rue's arrest. He was taken into custody by Officer Wilhelm, Monday night about 11 o'clock. Mitchell was fined the costs for his arrest.

A FAMILY REUNION AT BENNETT HOME

The Time Is Given to Various Social Pleasures.

A pleasant family reunion was held at the home of I. H. Sparks, of Bennett street, Sunday. A nice dinner was served after which the time was passed with social chat.

Counterfeit Dollar.

Counterfeit money is in circulation in Marion. A bogus dollar was accepted in payment for taxes at the office of the county treasurer, Monday. The counterfeit was not discovered until the cash was counted at closing time. The "phony" dollar would pass as legal tender ordinarily anywhere. It is not believed that the man who paid it into the county treasury knew it was counterfeit.

THE MODERN HUNT FOR PRIMITIVE MAN

Much Effort Now Being Made In Various Quarters to Unearth Facts Bearing on the History of the Human Race.

PRIMITIVE man or the man of the primitive type is now the subject of a great deal of study and speculation By primitive man the scientists mean sometimes the prehistoric man and sometimes the man who is still found living in conditions like those which prevailed before the dawn of history In either case the study is a fascinating one, and much remains to be learned in the various fields of knowledge now being searched for facts bearing on the history of the human race A number of expeditions have started recently for regions little known where curious tribes of men are living or where it is hoped that patient examination of the earth and rocks may reveal some relic of a bygone day having a story to tell of the kind of men that lived in the far distant past

In the frozen wastes of northern Siberia and Alaska and the Hudson bay district, in the torrid wilds of central Africa, in the jungles of Borneo and Java and in the little frequented isles of the Pacific and Indian oceans and in the United States Mexico and South America men whose enthusiasm in the cause of science cannot be quenched by the hardships they are called upon to endure are now pursuing investigations which they hope may add much to the sum of human knowledge and throw light upon passages in the history of human development hitherto obscure

There is a fascination about the pursuit of the study of primitive man whether alive or dead that appeals with great force to the scientific investigator Study of the living subject is often attended with more or less exciting adventure while if the quest be carried on for the relics of a primitive man who lived and died during or before the glacial era there are a mystery and an elusiveness about the search that make it especially alluring

Scientific societies and individual ethnologists are particularly busy in work of this kind at the present time They are searching in Java for relics of a race of men supposed to have existed there when the world was much younger than now In South America and in Mexico they are uncovering long buried cities and revealing facts that shed light on the prehistoric inhabitants of the continent In Nebraska and in Wyoming they have discovered remains of great interest which have aroused no little discussion in the scientific world Expeditions have started, or are about to start whose object is study of the Eskimos and of the pygmy tribes in Africa the Philippines and the Andaman Islands

* *

The Eskimos are to be studied by Professor V Stefansson an ethnologist on the staff of the Peabody museum of Harvard university He has made two visits to northern Alaska and this time will winter on the coast of Coronation gulf, Prince Albert Land among a tribe of Eskimo of whom practically nothing is known The American Museum of Natural History in New York is assisting him in his work

Professor Frederick Starr of the University of Chicago left for the orient not long ago in search of a little known Caucasian race of which remnants are supposed to exist still in the Philippines He will spend some time in study of such tribes and may also go inland in China where the Lolos or other mysterious white race survives For many years it has been one of his ambitions to live among these people said to be savages of a low type whom few have dared to visit He will take several graphophones with which to record their language

Reports have come from Professor R L Garner who has been living in a cage in the jungles of British West Africa among several families of monkeys the leader of some of the messages being Miss Ida Vera Simonton the first white woman to penetrate the wild region where Professor Garner has been at work Incidental to her ethnological studies in the dark continent Miss Simonton has written a play for production in London with native of the African forests in the principal parts wearing their habitual costume consisting of little beside a grin and a smile According to the messages brought by Miss Simonton Professor Garner is now able to converse fluently with the monkeys despite the obstacle of their basic language being limited to a vocabulary of seven words He also claims to have discovered that plants can reason Conservative scientists do not take much stock in Professor Garner's investigations however Dr Harlan I Smith curator of anthropology at the American Museum of Natural History characterizes all said discoveries as the latest thing in the way of nature fakes

'Dr Garner has merely gone Rev William J Long one better on the nature faking proposition said Dr Smith

'Perhaps he got a copy of an American newspaper in the African wilds and after holding a conference with his monkey friends decided that he wouldn't be downed by any one who made the time statement that a bird could set a broken leg or wing.'

As President Roosevelt plans to go hunting in Africa on the expiration of his term it is expected that he will attend to Professor Garner's case in the course of his trip

* *

The Eskimos are among the most primitive of all living races and such study as Professor Stefansson proposes to make of the unknown people he is to visit may result in valuable contribution to our store of facts illustrating the development of the human race so far as The Eskimos are the most thinly scattered people of the globe and their extraordinary persistency in maintaining their language and habits for probably thousands of years and in procuring subsistence in region where no other nation can live makes the subject of their study in especially enticing one

Allied to this study is that which has been made recently of the peoples of northern Siberia by the investigators of the Jesup North Pacific expedition of the American Museum of Natural History Many things have been brought to knowledge by these investigations which throw light upon the origin of the aborigines of America and their relation to the peoples of other continents

* *

Some day as the result of irenaceological and ethnological study we shall doubtless know definitely the history of man in America so far as it may be traced by the records he has left We shall know whether the red peoples originated on this continent or came from the old world and what communication there was between the two hemispheres before the time of Columbus The Aztec ruins contain many evidences of Asiatic influences When one finds for example in a ruined and long buried American city a sculptured deity with the head of an elephant, although elephants were unknown in the western world it is proof that the people of the hemispheres were not wholly without communication previous to the Columbian era Of course there might have been such communication, and still the red natives might have been original products of this continent. The latter theory would be more fully sustained could remains of man in America be found carrying him back to a period ten fifteen or twenty thousand years before our own Scientists have been on the hunt for such remains for a long time with but meagre and inconclusive results

Dr. Cook's Long Silence In the Arctic

WHEN an adventurous explorer sails bravely away into the perilous region dominated by what is known as the north pole there follows a long silence and as far as the public is concerned, apparent forgetfulness That is because the practice of searching for the pole has become so common that it now excites but a little of the interest which was formerly attached to it The time has arrived when pole hunters go and come—some of them—without especial comment It is only when the subject of a relief expedition is bruited that they are remembered and public interest in them is revived

It has been thus in the case of Dr Frederick A Cook one of the most fearless and intelligent men born with an ambition to plant his feet on spots of Mother Earth never before attained by his fellow man With the renown of being the pioneer to ascend to the summit of Mount McKinley still fresh in the memories of scientific men Dr Cook burned with an ambition to join the ranks of those who were engaged in the almost competitive scramble for the north pole The intrepid surgeon has been in the north for a year and not a word has come from him Not one of the Scandinavian sealers and whalers who have returned has brought any word from him and fears for his safety are now so prevalent as to warrant the immediate organization of a relief expedition

* *

In the spring of last year an opportunity came to Dr Cook to put his ardently cherished desire into execution John R Bradley a wealthy New York Nimrod who has done considerable exploration in the far north on his own private account fitted up a fishing schooner and with his wife and Dr Cook boarded the vessel at North Sydney N S and sailed to Labrador and Greenland

The millionaire skipper returned with his vessel in October of last year but Dr Cook was not with him It was then and not until then that Mr Bradley made the announcement that affairs had been going on in accordance with a regularly outlined plan and that from the first it had been the intention of Dr Cook to leave the party at Etah and thence make his way to the pole whenever the opportunity should seem to be most promising The following is Mr Bradley's very interesting account of the matter from its beginning

"Regarding the manner in which the Bradley arctic expedition took shape I have for years desired to make a trip to the north to hunt polar bear and walrus I often talked about such a trip with Dr. Cook, who, of course, had much previous arctic experience Dr Cook expressed a desire to go with me to the arctic some time getting back from north Greenland I took up the matter last winter of an arctic trip with Dr Cook and we began to formulate plans I finally decided to buy a vessel and outfit it and to start in the early summer We decided that an auxiliary schooner with a gasoline engine would suit our purpose best I therefore bought a 111 ton Gloucester fishing boat and had her rebuilt with three inches of white oak sheathing and below the water line and steel plates and bolts so as to stand the strain of the ice New rigging new sails and a gasoline engine were added In fact the ship which we rechristened the John R Bradley was fitted in every way to make it comfortable I obtained the services of Captain Moses Bartlett who was first officer of the Roosevelt Peary ship and assembled a Newfoundland crew All I had a twenty seven foot whaleboat built with a ten horsepower engine which could hold four men this to be used in the hunt for big game This boat with less than a thousand pounds on board would draw very little water and could be dragged over the ice on runners when necessary to avoid being nipped by the ice pan a constant danger In case we should become fast bound in the ice we took enough provisions for thirty men for two years

* *

While talking over our plans Dr Cook said to me one day 'Wouldn't you like to go with me this trip' I said I didn't know much about that sort of thing and didn't know whether I would care to try the rough life Arctic night life but I said if my aim would be with the boss I would outfit the boss I with everything necessary for the expedition and dash for the pole We sailed from Newfoundland to Battle Harbor Labrador the Davis Strait the South Greenland coast We first encountered ice south of Disko and had the propeller disabled by striking the ice We put in at Sydney where the ship and her gear and the damage and proceed from there north I was anxious to try my luck bear in Melville bay I saw Captain Bartlett and ordered him to steer into the ice of the bay as soon as possible so as to get some shooting

'When in the ice we saw many bear but found it almost impossible to get them without the use of native dogs, with which the Eskimos hunt for bear for the bear usually on large pans of ice miles square and would take to the water and get away We therefore decided to cross Melville bay and make Cape York where we were sure of finding natives with dogs We had a hard time for we were nipped twice by the ice and had to cut our way out Finally after seven days of hard work we reached Cape York but found it impossible to land there on account of storms and ice So we decided to go further north in search of dogs and finally reached North Star Bay Here we anchored and I fired a gun to attract the natives if any were about.

'Soon we saw two natives coming out in their little kayaks and in half an hour we had thirty five Eskimos—men women and children—aboard the ship the entire inhabitants of the settlement I spent three days shooting walrus which I found good sport The natives were all healthy and had plenty of food

* *

We sailed from North Star bay to McCormick bay Lowdoin bay and Robinson bay and had good shooting all the way also we came across more natives all in good condition Finally we reached Etah Peary's former winter quarters Here we enjoyed a view from the high hills of Smith sound There was no great amount of ice in the sound so Dr Cook the first mate and myself took the motor boat and went north through Smith sound to 79 degrees north latitude There are the farthermost settlements of the Eskimos and we spent several days among the natives many of whom remembered Dr Cook and greeted him heartily Dr Cook speaks the Eskimo language and so was able to converse with his old time friends We brought the greater part of this settlement back to Etah with us

Conditions looked so favorable for a dash for the pole later on that we decided at Etah to land the expedition at 79 degrees north latitude We found we could get all the dogs we wanted and all the natives that Dr Cook wished to have with him As the natives had already cached their winter supply of food I helped them to kill walrus, a few white whales and narwhals to augment the supply The Eskimo women kept busy catching arctic hare and birds to make their winter clothing

Dr Cook has now about fifty Eskimos—men women and children—and some 100 dogs in his winter quarters I thought it better that a white man should remain with Dr Cook, so a call for volunteers was made, and Rudolph Franke a young German, was selected He is a strong man and an enthusiastic would be arctic explorer. Dr Cook was left with ample provisions for three years and with everything else in the way of tools, sleds and other necessaries for the explorer. During the winter Dr Cook will get everything in readiness and about Feb 1 he will cross the ice of Smith sound and take a northwesterly course through Ellesmereland and try to strike the polar sea at 80 degrees north latitude He will travel as lightly as possible and then make his dash for the pole"

FOURTH OF JULY IS CELEBRATED IN CITY

Not So Much Noise as in Former Years.

FIREWORKS SALE EXTREMELY HEAVY

A Number of Accidents, but Most of Them Are of Minor Importance. Boys Try an Experiment with Powder and Learn That It Will Burn. Other Accidents.

Fourth of July, with its usual quota of accidents, none of which will terminate fatally, came in a blaze of patriotic fervor and ended in a haze of noisy splendor. The eagle screamed in Marion, perhaps not so loud as in previous years, but plenty loud enough for the nervous folk. There was no one to hinder the eagle from screaming. There is one day in the year that young America and the big bird which represents American liberty have to celebrate Independence day. That was Saturday. Many of the merchants, in fact the majority of them, kept their places of business open because it was Saturday, but that in no way interferred with the noisy demonstration.

Dealers in pyrotechnics say the sale of fireworks this year was as large if not larger than a year ago. The merchants who handles the Fourth of July supplies sold out completely. The rush began Friday and by Saturday morning hundreds of dollars had been spent for fire works. It would be hard to estimate how much money was spent in this way, but the total sum is large. Every safeguard possible was placed about the youthful celebrants and others to prevent the accidents which have always marred the pleasure of the day. Despite this there were some accidents, but most of them of minor importance.

Rhu Taylor, son of Dr. J. B. Taylor, of east Center street, had his face and hands slightly burned by powder as the result of a cannon cracker exploding in his hands Saturday morning.

As the result of rushing to the assistance of his children to keep them from being burned by a premature explosion of powder, Dennis Ryan, of Silver street, had his right eye and hands burned by the exploding powder Saturday. His hands were burned quite severely, but little of the powder flash reached the eye.

Howard Steinman, aged twelve years, residing on Forest street, had his face burned by an explosion of powder Saturday morning. The boy with a companion was making an experiment to see if the powder would burn if poured on a lighted stick. It did. The can also hit his companion in the face inflicting a bruise.

Vincent Molloy, the ten-year-old son of C. Molloy, of George street, suffered an accident, Saturday morning. He in company with some companions of about his age, were attempting to build a fort from which they intended to fire some powder. In the course of the work a spark was dropped into the powder, and an explosion followed. Young Molloy's face, forehead and eyes were terribly burned. Dr. L. Cheatham attended him. He is reported as out of danger and it is thought that his eyesight will be saved.

The twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Thomas, of Edward street, lighted a firecracker and threw it to the ground, Saturday morning. He waited for it to explode. Then, boy like, he grew impatient and picked up the firecracker. While he was making a close inspection of it, there was an explosion and the boy's eyes and face were badly powder burned. Dr. H. J. Lower attended him.

Little Mary Elizabeth Dwyer, the six-year-old daughter of Patrick Dwyer, of Silver street, suffered an accident Saturday evening. During the evening, the little girl with a number of companions was watching the fireworks throughout the city. Suddenly a small boy yelled, "Look out for that rocket," and the child rushed for safety, but was unable to get away from the falling missile. She was struck on the left shoulder a glancing blow and her shoulder and arm were badly lacerated.

LITTLE GIRL IS BADLY BURNED

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shetterly.

Little Genevieve, the five-year old daughter of William Shetterly, of west Center street, had a narrow escape from death by burning Sunday noon. The little girl was playing in the yard with a paper sack. She attempted to make a bonfire of it and her clothing became ignited. Neighbors, who chanced to be watching her, rushed to her assistance. They succeeded in extinguishing the flames but not until the child had suffered terrible burns. She was badly burned on the left arm and the shoulder, her left cheek was terribly scorched and her hair was badly singed. Two fingers of her right hand were also burned. The clothing on the left side of her body was entirely burned off. Dr. D. O. Weeks was called and dressed the little one's injuries. She spent a fairly good night and it is thought is out of danger.

THE MANGLED BODY OF ALONZO JACKSON

Horrible Find at Railway Bridge at Caledonia.

JACKSON IS LAST SEEN IN A SALOON

He Is Alleged To Have Made Remarks That Lead Coroner To Assume He Contemplated Suicide and Awaits Death Before a Train After Trouble with His Sweetheart.

The mangled body of Alonzo Jackson, twenty-one years old, son of Samuel Jackson, residing at Martel, was found in the west end of the bridge which spans the Whetstone river at Caledonia, Sunday morning at 4 o'clock. The body was discovered by Harry Gompf and two companions from this city who had been carried through Marion on a freight train from LaRue. The young men immediately notified the Caledonia authorities, who sent for Coroner E. L. Brady. The latter's verdict will be that Jackson probably committed suicide.

From the short investigation conducted by the coroner, evidence was developed indicating that Jackson had awaited his destruction before a Big Four train on the bridge. There was also evidence to show that he had met an accidental death, but the coroner is inclined to believe that it was a case of suicide.

Jackson had told some of his friends that he was going away and that he would not have to travel any, either. According to Coroner Brady's opinion the young man had trouble with his sweetheart, Miss Belle Olin of Martel.

The dead man was last seen in Caledonia, Saturday night. He was in a saloon at a late hour. His body was found crushed in between one of the tracks and the safety railing. One arm and one leg had been severed the arm falling under the bridge. The body was ground almost into a pulp. Nothing was found in the clothing.

The funeral service was held at the Disciples' church at Martel, Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, followed by interment in the Martel cemetery.

A merry crowd held a picnic on the lawn at the home of Mrs. James O. Uncapher, south of the city, on the Delaware pike, Saturday afternoon. Fireworks and games were enjoyed and a nice dinner was served on the lawn.

Those who enjoyed the hospitality of the Uncapher home were, Mrs. Blace and son, of Lewis Center; Elizabeth and J. B. Mathews of Delaware; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Uncapher, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Maten, Mr. and Mrs. John Monser, Mr. and Mrs. Holler, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Zackman, Mrs. Clemence Dennison, Misses Emma and Flora Cunningham and Mr. Edward A. gustine.

DANIEL MILEY IS CRIPPLED FOR LIFE

Knee Cap Is Broken in a Number of Places.

Daniel Miley, twenty-five years old, of Prospect, was crippled for life as a result of being kicked by a horse, Sunday afternoon. His left knee cap was broken in half a dozen places, opening the joint. He was brought to this city from Prospect on an interurban car and removed in the Hess & Mackert ambulance to the Central Emergency hospital.

While driving, Sunday afternoon, a part of the harness broke, allowing the buggy to bump against the horse, which began kicking. Before Miley could get out of the vehicle the animal kicked over the dash board, one of the iron hoofs striking him squarely on the knee.

MRS. EMMA LAYTON IS SHOT SATURDAY

Load of Fine Shot Lodges in the Woman's Neck.

SHE FORGETS TO LET GUN HAMMER DOWN

Mrs. Layton Gets Gun for Husband To Shoot Birds and in Handing the Weapon to Him It Is Discharged. Surgeon Finds the Wound Is Not Serious.

Accidentally shot in the neck with a small charge of mustard shot used for shooting birds, Mrs. Emma Layton is confined to her home on north Main street, but, unless blood-poisoning should develop, will soon recover.

The accident occurred Saturday afternoon about 1 o'clock. Friday, Mrs. Layton had been shooting at black birds. When she put the gun away she forgot to let down the hammer. Consequently when she secured the gun to hand to her husband to shoot at some birds the hammer was still cocked. In passing the weapon to him the gun was accidently discharged. The charge struck Mrs. Layton in the right side of the neck and he fell to the floor. Her husband thought he had killed her. Within a short time a report spread that she had committed suicide, but this was groundless.

Dr. E. L. Brady was hastily summoned. He was unable to locate the fine shot, but pronounced the wound of minor consequence if complications do not arise. Had the shot been large it is probable that the woman would have been fatally injured.

Shall I Buy a Cream Separator?

WILL IT PAY ME IF I DO?

Butter is too valuable a product to feed to calves or pigs.

Originally the calf got all the cream.

When the milk was set on the cellar shelf, the calf got half the cream and the other half was made into butter.

By setting the milk in spring water, the calf gets one-third the cream and two-thirds goes to butter.

The patent creamer, with ice, gets three-fourths of the cream for butter and one-fourth goes to the calf, in the skim-milk.

The Sharpless Tubular Separator gets all the cream for butter making, and the calf can be fed on perfectly skimmed milk.

THE SHARPLESS CREAM SEPARATOR is absolutely a big money maker, because it prevents waste of cream—and in a 10 cow dairy, you might sell enough cows to pay for a separator, and the cows remaining will make you far more money than when you had the whole herd, and no separator.

incomplete it is so only because his undertakings were too vast to be carried to success during his term of office. 'My policies' must continue. The pretense is that the fight must go on under the leader designated by him until the last foe shall have surrendered or lies inglorious in the dust. The nomination of his would-be successor was largely accomplished by the use of official patronage and coarse machine methods, and has delighted the chief apostle of strenuosity, and, at the same time, has not perturbed the conscience of the one-time civil service reformer, now 'the boss, an adept in the bestowal of advice to the public and forgetful of all his resounding moral commonplaces. No fair-minded American could read the daily accounts of the recent political doings at Chicago without feeling mortification and regret; mortification that the president should have so abused his power in dictating to a great party his choice of a successor, and regret that that party should have submitted so cowardly to a humiliation that was as manifest as it was degrading."

Mr. Clayton called attention to the failure of the Republican convention to insert a plank forbidding campaign contributions, quoted President Roosevelt's condemnation of the practice in his message of December, 1905. Injunctions and contempts of court were treated vigorously and several quotations from the message of President Roosevelt were given to show that the president had abandoned at Chicago the policies he had so vigorously urged in his message, adding:

"It is important to note that the act of June 2, 1886, was passed at the first session of the first congress that met under the first Democratic administration after the civil war and there labor received its first recognition from the government. One Republican administration had succeeded another for twenty-four years, and not one act was passed in the interest of labor or in acknowledgment of its right to fair and equal treatment. The Republicans enacted a tariff which enhanced the price of products that labor had made and capital owned, and they pretended to do this with a view of securing for labor higher wages. What they gave, however, was to the capitalist, and they trusted him to divide. That the increased profits of protected employers have made them able to pay the laboring man higher wages no one can doubt, but it remains for the saving grace of Almighty God so to touch their hearts as to make them willing to pay the higher wages.

"Among the contributions that went to make up the monument that this great man, Grover Cleveland, builded in the respect and affection of his countrymen, few are more striking than his almost instant recognition, as evidenced by the act of 1886, of the sane and just demands of labor on the lawmaking power. Under him Democracy blazed the way and now remains the unflinching champion of every sound reform in this direction. Immunity from law we promise nobody, Immunity from oppression from its very infancy the Democratic party has been dedicated to establish and secure.

The Tariff.

"The president and his party declare that a pre-election revision of the tariff would be unwise. This assertion has been repeated in advance of every election since the enactment of the Dingley law, and surely the country will not again be deceived by Republican promises to revise the tariff after the election. Their appeal to the people is this, 'give us another chance to make you a promise and the promise will be made.'

"What does protection mean? Under the Republican policy of protection the people, the consumers, while paying a little over $300,000,000 per year into the treasury through import duties of foreign goods, pay over $1,250,000,000 a year in the enhanced price of home produced goods. Our domestic manufactures exceed our total imports by ten to one and they are nearly all protected. It is safe to say that the people pay at least $5 to the already wealthy beneficiaries of protectionism for every dollar that is paid into the treasury. Behind the wall of high protection, which in some cases is altogether prohibitive, the trusts levy enormous tribute on the people. This has amounted to not less than $10,000,000,000 in the last decade, not counting the amount paid to support the government. This money has come from the pockets of the farmer, the mechanic, the merchant, the professional man and the laborer, and has been poured into the coffers of the protected classes. More than two-thirds of the capital that derives benefit from protectionism belongs to the trusts. The Democrats will revise the tariff downward and in the interest of the tax payers, who are always forgotten by the Republican party. There must be revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of tariff reduction for the common good, and not by the beneficiaries of its abuses, who justify use of the import taxing power for the chief purpose of conferring privilege and profit upon the few at the expense of the many.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTER

Trusts

"It is the shortest of steps from the tariff to the trusts. Let it be denied if they care to deny it, that the tariff is the real mother of the trusts. The president has made great pretense of destroying trusts. Let him tell of the result. In a message delivered to congress he said: 'The department of justice has for the last four years devoted more attention to the enforcement of anti-trust legislation than anything else. Much has been accomplished; particularly marked has been the moral effect of the prosecutions; but it is increasingly evident that there will be a very insufficiently beneficial result in the way of economic changes. The successful prosecution of one device to evade the law immediately develops another device to accomplish the same purpose. What is needed is not sweeping prohibition of every arrangement, good or bad, which might tend to restrict competition, but such adequate supervision and regulation as will prevent any restriction of competition from being to the detriment of the public, as well as such supervision and regulation as will prevent other abuses, in no way connected with restriction of competition.'

"This is an admission of failure; and one does not need to dwell on this admission further than to say that the imprisonment of those who violate the law would have had a more salutary effect than all that has been done or might have been done in this direction during his entire administration.

"The Democratic party will strike down special privileges, whether granted through a high protective tariff, or granted to government chartered corporations by permission of law. All trusts owe their birth and their ability to continue existence to one or the other of these two forms of special privilege. No private monopoly, no business approximating private monopoly, in methods or in magnitude, can endure without one or the other."

The recent panic and the causes which led to the Aldrich bill were treated exhaustively, and a review given of the failures of congress to pass many important measures which were recommended by the president. Regarding the president's failure to call an extra session, Mr. Clayton pointed out that the Democratic leader of the house, authorized by all his party associates, repeatedly offered to support the measures, but that Republican support was not forthcoming, and that it was simply a play for Republican votes. Federal usurpation of power was severely scored in the following language:

"The president is upon an eminence. If he violates the law, men everywhere know it. If he does not himself respect it to the full extent, he robs it of the reverence that might be willingly bestowed by others. In this same overbearing spirit he has placed and kept in office men who were not appointed by and with the advice and consent of the senate. He has influenced or attempted to influence courts and juries in the administration of public justice, not only by deciding who should and who should not be prosecuted, but by making known his personal feelings or sympathies between the prosecution and the accussed. He has scolded judges for their interpretations of the law. It was therefore timely and appropriate that the Republican party at Chicago should have declared that it 'will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts.'

"He has constantly cried out for more power on the part of the federal government at the expense of the powers reserved to the states. In his speech at Harrisburg, in October, 1906, he told of easy methods for increasing the power of the federal government. The method provided in the constitution was too cumbersome, slow and uncertain for him. There he lets the country into the secret of his short cut to increasing the federal power in these words: 'We need through judicial interpretation and construction, to increase the power of the federal government.'

"Mr. Root, whom the president is said to have called, 'my secretary' followed this Harrisburg expression by a speech at New York, in which he said: 'Sooner or later construction will be found to vest power where it will be exercised by the national government.'

"Of course many people are not surprised at any opinion the president utters; he has so many of them and has expressed them on so many conceivable and non-preconceivable occasions. Now, Secretary Root is an able lawyer and a man of trained and deliberate habits of thought. Nothing shows more plainly the demoralization wrought by the president than the fact that this trained lawyer, in the very front rank of his great profession, should advocate changing the organic law of the union by construction to 'be found'; and to 'be found' by whom? By the very men who are to exercise the power. The insidious proposition of Mr. Root, following up the suggestion of his chief, is that where authority is not granted, which, in the opinion of the executive, ought to have been granted, this authority is none the less to be exercised, and if no other basis for it can be had, it is to be based upon construction to 'be found.' In other words if the constitution has not conferred the power upon the executive, then the power is to be vested in him by construction to 'be found' in a way not provided for by the organic law of the Union.

"Representative institutions must be preserved, our federal government of delegated and limited powers must be maintained in all its constitutional vigor, and each state must be preserved with all of its reserve powers, and its integrity and autonomy forever. Therein is the safety of the Union and the states, one indissoluble and the other indestructible.

Democratic Duty.

"We know there is a brighter prospect, if the love of country and liberty is still strong in the hearts of the American people; if an oath to support the constitution is now considered by them as binding; if the people are in earnest in their protests against the rule of insolent wealth, the unauthorized and baleful influence of corporations and the exactions of the trusts; if the manliness of the fathers have been transmitted to the sons; and the fourth of next March will mark the advent of the Gladsome Light of Democracy and the beginning of the return to constitutional government honestly and economically administered. To the banner we raise here we invite all citizens of our common country who revere the nobler traditions of the past and who deplore the grave aberrations of the present. Let us see to it that this standard shall once again float over a government resting on lasting foundations.

"Mr Chairman, delegates and fellow countrymen: The time and the occasion in our national affairs impose a duty we cannot, if we would, evade. We must go out from this hall with one heart and a determination to put our loved ship of state on an even keel. That keel has been too long beating the air. We must bring it down into the deep and abiding waters of the constitution."

CONFERENCE IS HELD AT EPWORTH CHURCH

Rev. M. McK. Brackney Presides at Meeting.

SOME BUSINESS OF IMPORTANCE

A Resolution Adopted Asking the Return of Rev. David H. Bailey and Rev. Mr. Brackney—Reports Are Received as to the Condition of the Church—Everything Satisfactory.

Rev. William McK. Brackney, of Delaware, presided at a most interesting quarterly conference of the Epworth M. E. church, Wednesday evening. The various reports showed a very gratifying condition existing in the church, the membership of which is now 1,362. This is a net gain of forty-seven for the present year. The average attendance of the Sunday-school for the last quarter was 808, the largest in the history of the church. The finances of the church compare favorably with other years, as shown by the treasurer's report.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted requesting both the return of Rev. David H. Bailey, the pastor, and Rev. Mr Brackney, the superintendent of this district, for another year.

The following church trustees were reelected: J. W. Waddell, E. C. Smith, J. B. King, C. B. Jenkins, J. J. Crawley, Johnson Mooney, George Von Stein, G. W. King and Philip Bauer.

The following members of the church constitute the board of stewards: John H. Clark, G. E. Lawrence, J. H. Bain, S. R. Rauhauser, George Brown, Josephus Monnette, George Von Stein, W. J. Grills, W. T. Jones, I. A. Robinson, Fred Hochstetter and Philip Bauer.

The class leaders chosen are: Mrs. H. J. Coil, Mrs. H. E. Hill, Frank Zuck, W. H. Moore, J. M. Monnette, Johnson Mooney, R. J. Pennell, A. G. Uncapher, J. H. Oatey, Roy Garfield, W. T. Owen, Mrs. A. L. Carhart, Mrs. Emma Rice, J. W. Galleher, J. J. Crawley, Elmer Parish and H. B. Abbott.

UNTIMELY DEATH OF YOUNG WOMAN

Mrs. LeRoy O. DuRoss, Bride of but Two Weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Berry, of Green Camp, returned home, Wednesday, from Camden, Michigan, where they attended the funeral of Mrs. LeRoy O. Du Ross, who died on the Fourth of July while on her honeymoon trip at DeWitt, Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Du Ross, the former having lived at Green Camp, were married June 23, and just two weeks from the wedding day the bride was buried in Michigan. The bridal couple were spending their honeymoon with relatives at DeWitt, when Mrs. Du Ross was stricken by Bright's disease, Monday, and at 9 o'clock the following Saturday night she died. She was highly respected. Up until her marriage to Mr. Du Ross she was a teacher at Hillsdale, Michigan. She was formerly Miss Winifred Ellis and her marriage to Mr. Du Ross was the culmination of a romance that had its beginning at Hillsdale college, where Mr. Du Ross was a student there from Marion county.

Mr. Du Ross is now superintendent of schools at Fremont, Indiana.

NIGHT SESSION OF CONVENTION

Majority Credentials Report Is Adopted

AFTER MUCH WORRY OVER STENOGRAPHER

Who Disappears with Doings of Committee.

Manuscript of Speech of Ollie James of Kentucky Is Also Missing. Congressman Hobson Sees a War with Japan on the Hands of Colonel Bryan in Event of the Latter's Election.

Denver, July 9. — Spectators were more prompt in arriving for the night session of the Democratic national convention than were the delegates, and the galleries in the auditorium were well filled by 8 oclock. Apparently it was the opinion of many of the visitors that the night session was to reveal a reproduction of the spectacular scenes enacted during the day. Delegates were, however, of another mind and, having worried themselves by their enthusiasm earlier in the day, did not pour into the hall with the same alacrity as was shown by the public.

The officers of the convention and the members of the credentials committee were in a panic as the time approachd for the opening of the convention, because the majority report of the committee was missing. The precious document was in the possession of the stenographer, and he could not be found. The same individual was also in possession of a speech to be delivered by Representative Ollie James of Kentucky, who was also in mental distress, because of the absence of his oration. The last seen of the stenographer was at 1 o'clock, when he went away with the report, under strict injunctions to write it and return it as soon as possible. Chairman Callahan of the credentials committee, with flushed and perturbed face, was rushing hither and thither about the hall, frantically sending messengers and working the telephone to every spot where his imagination allowed him to suspect that the missing stenographer might be in retirement. Mr. Callahan finally went to Chairman Bell with the information that he could not find his report, and suggested that some speakers fill in the time that must elapse before the missing report was found.

The convention officials, after a short conference, held immediately after Mr. Callahan had rushed away on another hot scent, decided that no work should be undertaken by the convention at the night session except to consider the report of the credentials committee. Debate on the majority and minority reports, it was agreed, should be limited to 30 minutes on each side. The report of the committee on permanent organization and the speech of Chairman Clayton went over until morning.

At 8:30 the report of the committee on credentials was brought to the hall, but Chairman Bell had wandered off and could not be located, and the delegates and spectators put in another period of inactivity while pages and messengers were scouring the hall to bring the chairman to his desk and his duty.

When Chairman Bell had been brought back, after bringing down his gavel in a rapid tattoo, he gave vent once more to his stereotyped cry, "The convention will be in order, gentlemen will take their seats."

The convention, however, did not at once come to order nor did the gentlemen "take their seats," for the reason that a number of letter carriers were distributing mail among the delegates and they were for the time being more interested in letters from home than in reports from convention matters. The convention apparently was in sufficient order to proceed to business several times, but Mr. Bell did not take advantage of any one of the psychological moments, but continued to pound with his gavel, the "rap, rap, rap," of the wooden mallet on a marble slab being punctuated from time to time with the conventional call of "Gentlemen will take their seats."

The galleries finally helped the chairman out, and their storm of hiss quieted the turbulence on the floor. It was 8:27 when the business of the evening was taken up.

Mr. Ormonde of Florida was recognized to move that Representative Richmond Pearson Hobson of Alabama be invited to address the convention. Mingled with the cheers for "Hobson, Hobson," were many cries of "no, no."

Chairman Bell put the motion to a viva voce vote, and there was a rousing storm of "aye" and "no," some of the delegates supplementing their negative votes by demands of "give us committee reports; we want to do business."

"Please permit the chair to announce the result," said the chairman as soon as he could be heard above the confusion. "I have a very sensitive ear and I decide that the vote is a tie. It is therefore the privilege of the chair to cast the deciding vote. I cast it in the affirmative, and Congressman Hobson is invited to address the convention."

Cheers and a few hisses followed Hobson to the stand, and he received a warm welcome as he stood behind Chairman Bell. His first words showed that he realized that a speech at that particular moment was not entirely welcome to all of the delegates, for he declared that he would not venture to make an address did he not feel it his duty to do so, and to deliver himself of the truth as he believed he saw it. He then began at some length to lead up to a discussion of the Japanese incidents of several months ago at Vancouver and San Francisco.

After Hobson had been speaking for 15 minutes the crowd began to grow restless and cries of "time" came from floor and galleries. Chairman Bell called for order, saying the speaker would conclude in a few moments.

In concluding his address Congressman Hobson declared that if the Democratic party was successful in the election he believed that it would, before the end of four years, "have a great foreign war on its hands."

Instantly there came from the convention a chorus of mingled groans, cat calls, hisses and cries of "no, no." After several interruptions, Mr. Hobson concluded and Charles A. Towne was invited to address the convention by Chairman Bell. His address was brief and to the point. He was followed by Senator Tayler of Tennessee, who took the platform and made a few remarks.

As Senator Tayler retired the chairman announced: "Gentlemen of the convention, we are now going to get down to hard work. The committee on credentials is ready to report. The chair recognizes Christopher G. Callahan, chairman of the committee."

Mr. Callahan then read the report, which was as follows: "In the matter of the contests in Idaho, Illinois, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, your committee begs to report that they have carefully investigated each of said contests; that hearings have been given to both the contestants and the contestees in each of the states, and your committee has endeavored to ascertain as near as could be all the facts bearing upon each contest, and after a careful investigation of the merits of each contest recommends that in each of the following contests the delegations as named by the national committee be entitled to seats and be the regularly accredited delegates and alternates to this convention, namely:

"The state of Idaho; the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth districts of Illinois; the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh districts of the state of New York; the Nineteenth district of Ohio; the Thirty-second district of Pennsylvania; the District of Columbia.

"In the matter of the contest from the First, Second, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth districts of the state of Pennsylvania, we recommend that the contestants shall be seated and recognized by this convention as the duly accredited delegates and alternates from said districts in the state of Pennsylvania, to-wit: First district, Neil Bonner, Michael Francis; Second district, Ryerson W. Jennings; Fourth district, A. Raymond Raff, Horace F. Fegel; Fifth district, Patrick F. Horan, Paul Wise; Sixth district, P. J. Hallahan.

"In the matter of the contest from the Nineteenth district of the state of Ohio your committee recommends that the following be seated in this convention as the accredited delegates from said district: E. A. Powers, Dr. William Watts."

While the chairman was reading the report, Roger C. Sullivan, chairman of the Illinois delegation, which state was generally understood to have determined to fight side by side with Pennsylvania in behalf of the minority report, was busily running about the floor conferring with a number of other delegations and preparing for the fight soon to come.

When Chairman Callahan read the decision of the committee in favor of the contestants against Guffey in Pennsylvania, there were a few hisses and some applause. The interruption was of brief duration, however, and the reading of the report was continued. Is the matter of the two lists of committee appointments from the state of Pennsylvania, Chairman Callahan reported that the credentials committee recommended that, in view of the contest decisions, the list be referred back to the delgation for further action. Mr. Callahan concluded by moving the adoption of the report. "I second that motion," shouted a delegate from Indiana. The chairman stated the question and then recognized I. L. Straus of Maryland, who read the minority report, which recommended that the contestees in the Pennsylvania cases be seated.

The chairman recognized Chairman Callahan of the credentials committee as the first speaker in behalf of the majority report. Before Mr. Callahan could speak Mr. Straus claimed that as he carried the affirmative he had the right to open and close the debate. The chair ruled, however, that the chairman of the committee, as he represented the majority, should have the right to open and close, and he again recognized Mr. Callahan. Mr. Callahan began by saying that the time allowed the majority would be divided between himself and Governor Haskell of Oklahoma, the latter ending the debate. It had been expected that Ollie James of Kentucky would speak in support of the majority report, but the limiting of the time prevented.

Mr. Callahan said the evidence before the committee showed that in Philadelphia the Guffey faction brought a host of Republicans to the Democratic primary polls. These voters, he declared, were members of the Philadelphia Republican machine, of which "one McNichol" was the head. In one congressional district where the normal Democratic vote was about 2,600, the vote in the primary swelled to more than 2,700. This was but one instance of many, declared Mr. Callahan, the evidence of which was supported by undisputed affidavits.

"When we consider all the evidence," he concluded. "it was impossible to escape the conclusion that the Democracy of Philadelphia had been kept at home by an alliance of one element of the Democracy with the dominant Republican machine in that city. We were urged that exigencies of harmony required that we should shut our eyes to these irregularities, but no set of men with a spark of justice in their breast could do other than we have done."

The first speaker for the minority report was Mr. Straus, who had presented it. Mr. Straus asked that the substitution of the minority for the majority report should be on the ground that the majority report was an attack upon te indefensible rights of the Democrats of a sovereign state.

The New York delegation showed marked signs of a sympathy with the minority report as Mr. Straus went on, applauding him frequently. They cheered him lustily as did many other delegates, notably those of Pennsylvania, when he said that any man who had read law for three weeks knew that to deprive delegates of their seat, it must be shown that enough illegal votes had been cast at the election to change the result, and no evidence of this kind he declared had been heard by the credentials committee.

To conclude the argument in behalf of the minority report, the chair recognized John D. Bellamy, of North Carolina, one of the signers of the document. He declared the contestants brought absolutely no sort of credentials with them to set against the undisputed count of ballots cast in favor of the Guffey delegation.

The closing speaker for the majority and the last of the debate was Governor Haskell of Oklahoma. He promptly took up the statement of Mr. Bellamy that Republicans could properly vote at Democratic primaries. He discussed in sarcastic sentences the contention of Mr. Bellamy, asserting that, under that gentleman's argument, he might as well have been elected a delegate to the Chicago convention. After he had charged the contestees in the Pennsylvania cases with collusion with the Republicans, he was interrupted by a voice from the rear of the hall saying:

"Give 'em the other barrel." Governor Haskell charged the Pennsylvania contestees with being the tools of the Standard Oil company. He said the convention should say to the contestees: "Go back to your Standard Oil tanks," and instantly he was drowned with a yell of approval, which was, however, mingled with many hisses.

"I've heard that hissing sound come out of a pipe line many a time," shouted the governor and the convention broke into a roar of laughter and applause. He concluded by strongly urging the adoption of the majority report.

The rollcall on the adoption of the minority report was enlivened by a sharp exchange of words between Colonel Guffey and Representative Ollie James of Kentucky over the right of the contesting delegates from Pennsylvania to vote. The chair ruled that the point of order made by Mr. James was not well taken, and the delegates as certified by the national committee were permitted to vote on the report, which was lost by a vote of 387 to 615. The majority report was then adopted by a viva voce vote and the convention adjourned until 11 o'clock a. m.

All Records Broken.

Denver, July 9.—The early meeting of the convention Wednesday was productive of little practical progress as the principal committees were not ready to report. But it had the effect of an explosion of long pent up Bryan enthusiasm, which took the signal from Senator Gore's eloquent reference to the Nebraska leader and burst into a whirlwind of enthusiastic tribute lasting one hour and 19 minutes, with seven minutes more of the expiring echoes of clamor, establishing the convention record of an hour and 26 minutes or full 39 minutes in excess of the Roosevelt demonstration at Chicago, which held the record. It was a decisive exhibition of the overmastering strength of Bryan column and one of the most dramatic convention pictures ever presented as the standard of the states were torn from their moorings and borne through the hall until they stood together on the platform, like an army of banners, proclaiming their united allegiance to Bryan. Amid this storm of Bryan demonstration the six standards of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Georgia, Minnesota and Connecticut stood rooted to their places, the rallying points of little groups unmoved by the frenzied scenes about them. Throughout the hour and 19 minutes the deafening uproar continued, ebbing and flowing in intensity, women joining with the men in cheering the Bryan standard aloft, while the whole assemblage of 12,000 people joined in the tumultuous demonstration.

The early session lasted 3 hours and then, worn out with exertion and lacking the material to proceed with business, the convention recessed until eight o'clock p. m.

A SEMI-ANNUAL TAX SETTLEMENT

The Liquor Tax Collected in the County.

County Auditor Charles L. Allen has completed his report for the semi-annual liquor tax settlement in Marion county. The report shows a decrease for the corresponding six months a year ago. For the half year ending July 1 the liquor tax collection in the county amounted to $22,282.60. For the same period a year ago the collection was $24,194.54. The collection in the city of Marion a year ago was $8,413.81, while this year it is $8,205.05, which amount will be placed into the general fund and the public safety fund of the city.

Of the remainder of the liquor tax the state will receive $6,684.77, while the county infirmary will receive $4,456.51. Caledonia village will receive $952.06, La Rue $714.05, Agosta $238.02, Prospect $952.06 and Waldo $80.08.

There are now forty-eight saloons in the county. Six months ago there were fifty-three.

MISS MARY BARR DIES THURSDAY

Death Comes as a Shock to Local Friends.

The many local friends of Miss Mary Barr will be grieved to learn of her sudden death which occurred, Thursday, shortly after midnight, at her home in Chillicothe. Miss Barr will be remembered as head trimmer for Miss Todd last year.

Last Monday, Miss Barr was taken sick, complaining only of a headache. Complications set in, but nothing serious was anticipated until late Wednesday afternoon, when her condition took a sudden turn for the worse.

The deceased was the guest of Miss Josephine Werley just a month ago. Miss Werley returned from a visit with Miss Barr at her home, Wednesday morning, and when she left nothing serious was anticipated.

The young woman was known in the city as a charming and accomplished lady and made many friends during her stay here. Miss Werley will attend the funeral.

The worst thing about any evil deed is its fruitfulness.

Frank Harris Hitchcock

The New Napoleon of Politics, Who Engineered the Nomination of William H. Taft For President—An Enthusiastic Son of Ohio, Often Called "the Best Politician In the Country."

THE Republican national convention recently held at Chicago was a tremendous triumph for Frank Harris Hitchcock, the new Napoleon of politics. It was a great administration victory, President Roosevelt being successful in every move and forcing through his programme without material alteration on any point.

The man who made that possible, says the New York Times, who organized the victory and drilled the forces that won it, was Hitchcock.

It was interesting and amusing to see the way in which Hitchcock was followed about the streets and hotel corridors at Chicago by the admiring and curious outsiders who merely wanted a chance to look at the man who had nominated Secretary Taft for the presidency. It made no difference where Hitchcock was, there a group immediately gathered about him, and literally thousands of men and women shook his hand and introduced themselves to him merely for the satisfaction of meeting and talking for a moment with the newest dominating factor in the great national game.

It was all like wine to Hitchcock. He is naturally of a modest and extremely retiring disposition. He has the typical politician's inordinate love of mystery. No matter how trivial the thing he is doing, horses and log chains could not drag a word out of him about it until he is thoroughly ready to talk. And even then it is with the greatest difficulty that he forces himself to do the least thing in the publicity line.

But this spontaneous recognition at Chicago of the work he had done and talms a special reputation for political skill usually knows something of the game.

FRANK HARRIS HITCHCOCK.

Genuine Ohio Enthusiast.

It was therefore inevitable that when young Hitchcock went to Harvard in the fall of 1887 he would know more about politics and have a greater interest in it than most of his classmates. Moreover, he had the genuine Ohio enthusiasm, which makes a man trudge miles over cobblestones in a downpour of rain just to take part in a campaign parade. He had had his early education in Boston and already knew the ins and outs of the ward contests. His Harvard experience added a new and interesting variation in the shape of college politics. When he left Cambridge in 1891 Hitchcock had a political equipment such as very few young men possess laid on the substantial foundation of a native Ohio enjoyment in the game.

After his graduation from Harvard Mr. Hitchcock went to Washington and became chief of the division of foreign markets in the department of agriculture. Biology was the special line of amusement he cultivated then. There is, of course, an analogy between biology, the science of life, and politics, the science of human nature. But while he was amusing himself with biology and incidentally studying law at the Columbian university Mr. Hitchcock was, as usual, finding his real enjoyment in the practical pursuit of politics. It was a practical pursuit, although in a measure dilettante, for from his place in the department of agriculture there was not much practical use to which he could put the results he attained. Its practicality really consisted in the foundation he was laying for future opportunity.

Talented as an Organizer.

From the department of agriculture Mr. Hitchcock went to the new department of commerce and labor, where, as chief clerk under George B. Cortelyou, its first secretary, he helped in its organization, putting into substantial practice the faculty of systematizing work which he had developed to a high degree. His work in both these departments involved a great deal of traveling throughout the country. It took him, in fact, into every state and territory in the Union except one, South Dakota.

Some men traveling in that way put in their spare time flirting with hotel waitresses. Others go to theaters or lodge meetings. Some sit around the hotels and gossip or play cards. Hitchcock put in his spare time getting acquainted with the Republican leaders wherever he went. He dropped in at local headquarters and talked over the situation. He called at newspaper offices and got acquainted with "editor, printer and devil." And they talked Republican politics to him. He gained acquaintances and friends among postmasters, judges, United States marshals, revenue officers and pension agents, all the line of federal commission holders, as well as among men whose biggest political experience was a township or county fight. There is a widespread impression that Hitchcock's political endeavor and acquaintance are confined to the south. As a matter of fact, the south is only a minor fraction of the field of his activity.

When David B. Hill was the Democratic master of New York state he had a grip on the local situation in every township that was the amazement of his friends and opponents alike. That is the sort of knowledge Hitchcock has of the whole country. He knows men and conditions everywhere. He made it a business to know them, and what he undertakes in a business way is carried out on scientific principles and with a thoroughness that leaves nothing undone or to chance.

All that acquaintance and knowledge of local situations were brought into effective employment during the Roosevelt campaign of four years ago, when he was assistant secretary of the Republican national committee, of which George B. Cortelyou was chairman. It is a common thing to say that Hitchcock got his political training under Cortelyou. There is no doubt that Secretary Cortelyou is a political adept; but, when it comes to political training, he was born in New York, and Hitchcock is a son of Ohio.

When Cortelyou became postmaster general under Roosevelt, Hitchcock, who had resigned from the department of commerce and labor for the campaign, went into office again as first assistant postmaster general. In that office he had a wide field for the employment of the political skill and information which he had acquired in his previous experience. He had made friends among congressmen before; now he had opportunity to cement such friendships as well as to acquire new ones. It was to assume the management of the Taft campaign that Mr. Hitchcock resigned his place as first assistant postmaster general.

Had Many Fine Offers.

It was not a question of money that took him out of the postoffice department. It was the pure love of the game. He has had business offers before, plenty of them. His is the faculty for organization and execution which attracts the heads of large business concerns and for which they pay fancy salaries. They have been after him numerously, and he has refused them all. Only a few days before he went to Secretary Taft he rejected a business opening that carried several times his postoffice department salary, and it may be said that he did not better himself financially by the change from the department to Taft.

Mr. Hitchcock is a bachelor. There may have been a romance in his life somewhere in the bygone years, but the popular belief is that he never had time for anything but work and that the work of politics furnished his only recreation. Hard work and the ability to inspire in others a joy in hard work make friends who stick, and that is a prime qualification for a politician. Mr. Hitchcock has been making that sort of friends ever since he began politics back in his boyhood days. He has them in every congressional district in the country, which is one of the reasons why he is a powerful factor in the Taft campaign. In the long run in politics the man who has the most and truest friends wins.

His Activity at Harvard.

One member of Frank Hitchcock's class, at Harvard, Robert Lincoln O'Brien, now editor of the Boston Transcript, thus describes the college youth:

"He went to Harvard in 1887, about this time casting his first vote. The Republican party in Massachusetts just then was in a bad way. Young men's Republican clubs were organized in various parts of the state, and the leaders in the young men's movement were given a recognition that had heretofore been reserved only for those that wore the badge of long and honorable service. Hitchcock had done a lot of reading on political subjects and was soon enlisted in the young men's movement.

"In his four years at Harvard he was intensely active in Boston local politics. For recreation he won laurels with the boxing gloves and pushed forward the young men's Republican movement in Boston. He did all the things that a hewer of wood and drawer of water in precinct and ward politics is supposed to do. He worked, moreover, with enthusiasm, and he carried on his studies in politics with the re-enforcement of his practical experience in the precinct and ward. He was zealous enough to win the post of precinct committeeman. He didn't want office. He helped collect campaign funds. He canvassed his precinct, and he learned how to get votes.

"He learned how to capture a caucus, preferably by the gentle method of persuasion of a few leading spirits in the locality, but by those drastic methods known to municipal campaigning if necessary. He did so well in his precinct that he was made ward committeeman, and he was repeatedly honored by being selected as delegate to city and state conventions. He thus formed the acquaintance of the leading politicians of Boston and of the state, an acquaintance that has since been valuable. As another evidence of his zeal he was instrumental in the formation of the Young Men's Republican Club of Harvard."

Ready to "Josh" With Any One.

Not that he became communicative about his own game. Far from that. The ignorance he displayed about some of the matters of commonest knowledge was colossal. Not from anything he had to say could it ever be suspected that he had been the head and front of the shrewdest nominating campaign of modern days. But he was always smiling and affable and ready to "josh" with anybody about anything.

Hitchcock's management of the Taft-nominating campaign was a marvel. It was a tremendous surprise to some of the men who had known him longest during his connection with official life in Washington and who should have learned something more of his ability as a politician than they had.

About the corridors and on the streets in Chicago it was a common thing to hear the comment as Hitchcock passed.

"There's the best politician in the country."

Mr. Hitchcock was born in Ohio forty years ago. In the Buckeye State both men and women are popularly believed to absorb politics much as a sponge absorbs water, and the man who attains a special reputation for political skill usually knows something of the game.

National Monument For Cleveland.

Plans have been started in Essex county, N. J., the county which gave birth to Grover Cleveland, former president of the United States, for a fund to raise a national monument as a fitting tribute to his memory. Already several of the most prominent citizens of the state have been interviewed on the subject, and they have all expressed a desire to be among the subscribers to such a cause.

Mammoth Mosquito Trap.

Dr. Thomason of the sanitary department in Havana is testing a new device for checking the spread of yellow fever. It consists of a tent large enough to inclose a whole block, and it is claimed for it that it will permit of such thorough simultaneous fumigation of the houses that not a fever infected mosquito has a chance to escape.

THE MATINEE RACES ATTRACT BIG CROWDS

Richwood Entertains Great Many Visitors.

The five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Pierce, who reside two miles east of Richwood, died, Thursday, of cholera infantum. Funeral services were held from the Pierce home, Sunday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. L. S. Colborn officiating. Interment followed at Bethlehem.

Miss Edith Howison is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Earl Cobb, of Marion.

E. A. Freshwater & Sons, of Chester, West Virginia, were awarded the contract, Tuesday, for the paving of Franklin street from the B. F. Davis home to the Tawa road. The paving will extend past the creamery and will greatly improve the southern part of town. Several building lots have already been sold along the street, and new residences will be erected. There were three bidders for the improvement.

PAINTER SUFFERS A FALL WEDNESDAY

Walter Motz Escapes Any Serious Injury.

Walter "Doc" Motz, a painter, fell twenty feet off a ladder scaffolding, his head striking the brick pavement, and escaped serious injury, Wednesday between 9 and 10 o'clock.

Motz and his employer, Robert G. Cheney, had drawn themselves on the ladder scaffolding along the alley wall of the Odd Fellows block on North Main street. Cheney was at the west end of the swinging ladder and Motz at the east end. The latter was endeavoring to pull the tacks out of a cloth sign when he pushed the ladder away from the building and struck on his forehead and his left elbow. The fact that his skull was not fractured is believed to have been due to his elbow coming in contact with the pavement first. With a gash in his head that required four stitches to close and the blood streaming down his face, Motz was on his feet in no time. He insisted that he was not badly hurt and did not want to go the hospital. Cheney, who narrowly escaped falling himself when Motz lost his balance, procured a hack and sent the injured man to the Central Emergency hospital where he was given attention by Dr. H. Chisholm.

Sweetnote's Vocation.

"J. A. Sweetnote, Chicago." That inscription on the register at the Coates House in Kansas City excited the curiosity of one man the other morning, and when he suggested to the owner of the name that it was a euphonious one Mr. Sweetnote grinned. "But there's a funny connection between my name and my business," he said. "I'm a traveling salesman for a boiler factory."

ENGINEER HANSEN MAKES INSPECTION

Views a Ditch That Is Source of Complaint.

WILL MAKE REPORT ON THE CONDITION

The Official Is Accompanied on His Trip of Investigation by Officials Concerned in Local Health Affairs—The Ditch Drains the Local Slaughter-House District.

Engineer Hansen, of the state board of health, returned to Columbus, after viewing a ditch that drains the slaughter-house district southwest of the city and empties into Rock Swale, near where the Columbia street ditch also empties. He will make a report of his investigation within two weeks. He was sent here by C. O. Probst, secretary of the state board of health, at the request of the Marion township trustees, to whom a great deal of complaint had been made with regard to the stench arising from the drain.

At a point where the ditch crosses the Green Camp pike, just west of Webb park, the stench is said to be almost sickening at times. The township trustees did not know how to remedy it and they notified the state board of health. The drain, according to those who have made an examination, carries refuse from the slaughter-houses which clogs in places, owing to the slight fall, with the result that a stench follows.

Wednesday afternoon, Engineer Hansen, Township Trustees S. N. Titus, Thomas R. Roberts and W. B. Everett, City Health Officer Roy Chapman and Township Health Officer Wesley Uish viewed the drain and found that the stench was almost unbearable at certain places and that cause for complaint was sufficient to warrant immediate action of some kind. The state engineer did not divulge much information as to any remedy for the situation, but informed the trustees that he would make a written report to the secretary of the state board of health within two weeks and that the report would be sent to the local township trustees.

He is never worth thinking much about who thinks most of himself.

SATURDAY - - - - - JULY 11

The Democratic papers of the country are saying many nice things about Mr. Cleveland, but it's highly probable that he would have appreciated them more had they been uttered before he was dead.

Georgia is now asking for 7,000 cars to move the peach crop killed last spring.

An Iowa prophet predicts the end of the world in October, but by that time many of us will be so thoroughly fagged out as a result of our summer vacations that we won't care.

The Chicago News says the danger of typhoid is much greater at summer resorts than in cities, for the reason that the mosquitoes from malarial swamps near summer resorts are especially dangerous. What rot! We've read hundreds of summer resort advertisements and folders and never seen the word mosquito mentioned in one of them.

After all, the school book trust would probably rather have had the scalp of some school superintendent, who doesn't change text books often enough to suit it, than the election of its candidate to the presidency of the National Educational association.

So Uncle Sam ran $60,000,000 behind last year. Goodness gracious! A year or two like that would break the most of us.

"Let us be thankful," says the Washington Post," that for some time, at least, the knockers have permitted us to forget what the Panama canal is going to cost." The Post very philosophically, takes the view, possibly, that this is another case where anticipation is worse than realization.

It is said that there are 306,141 federal jobs, but, unfortunately for the patriots, they are not all listed at the pie counter.

The Cleveland Leader tells us a girl named Angelina, down in Louisiana, has been convicted of putting ground glass in the food of her husband. Say didn't Mr. Shakespeare know what he was talking about when he got off that one about there being nothing in a name.

We must not judge the Buckeye who asks for a divorce because his wife hit him over the head with her bustle till we learn whether it was one of the light, woven-wire variety or the family photograph album pressed into use temporarily.

Walter Wellman doesn't appear the slightest bit worried over the possibility of Peary finding the pole and cheating him out of a long-contemplated airship trip.

Try as hard as we may to be happy, at times the regret will come to us that all the world is not able to enjoy Merry Marion's matchless weather.

The magazines are offering President Roosevelt a dollar a word for copy, while out in the Hoosier literary belt they are glad to grind it out for a dollar a column. There is no use talking; things are not evenly distributed in this world—particularly brains.

An exchange calls attention to the fact that one of Secretary of War Wright's first official acts was to appoint seven new chaplains. Still, considering the size of the army, that shouldn't be considered a reflection.

The Chicago News appears surprised that a Minnesota man who eats pie with a knife should be nominated for governor, not knowing that, up in Minnesota, one is considered peculiar who eats pie any other way.

"Ever notice," asks the Allentown Call, "how the paragraphers who give alliterative titles to cities, sidestep when Xenia, Ohio, looms up before them?" Pshaw! You are away off the mark. Have you never read the story about the Chicago man who asked the New York woman how she pronounced Chicago and received the reply that she never pronounced it? Same way with the paragraphers regarding Xenia. It's not lack of ability, but lack of inclination. If you don't believe it, tell us what's the matter with Xenia! Xenia.

Governor Harris, a lifelong abstainer, refused to welcome the Prohibitionists to Columbus, but Mayor Bond, elected by the Capital City liquor interests, will hold out the hospitable hand. There's a jokelet for you.

It was hardly professional courtesy on the part of those New York politicians to endeavor to take the anti-injunction wind out of Colonel Bryan's sails.

LONDON HORSE SHOW FEATURES

Valuable Steeds on Exhibition — The Decorations Will Be Superb.

London wants to outdo New York's record for horse shows. Last year the difficulties in finding superlatives adequately to describe the wonders of the international horse show at Olympia were great; this year they are heroic.

Lord Lonsdale told the New York American's London correspondent that the show this year, to be held in June, will be by far the greatest spectacle of its kind ever seen. Some of the details on which he based this assertion are these:

First, the show is to be held in the biggest show building in the world, a building in the annex of which Madison Square Garden in New York can be comfortably tucked away.

During the nine days which the show lasts there will be seating accommodation for over 260,000 persons.

An additional 70,000 spectators will be able to view the performances from the promenade which is to be constructed around three sides of the arena.

There are over 2,500 entries in the various classes, and over a thousand horses will be shown. The value of these horses will exceed $2,000,000.

Two thousand attendants, including grooms and ushers, to say nothing of judges and officials, will be required.

The prizes to be given exceed in amount those ever offered at any show in the world.

Special trains will be run to Olympia from every part of the United Kingdom.

Every European nation will be represented in the entries.

The show is already such an assured success that seats are being sold at a premium, and the moment the doors open at Olympia seats will be on sale for the 1909 show.

The insurance effected at Lloyd's alone makes extraordinary reading. Olympia itself has been insured against fire for $700,000. The public are insured against any kind of accident for $50,000, the grooms for a similar amount and the 300 horses which are to be stabled in the building for $100,000. Minor insurances have been placed for another $40,000.

The most striking feature of this year's show will be the introduction of a promenade like that at the New York show. Last year the directors, after turning away thousands owing to the lack of seating capacity and listening to the many complaints, came to the conclusion that the public went as much to the show to see each other and get a close look at society as to see the horses. Reluctantly they came to the conclusion that a promenade must be added.

This promenade, which will surround the arena on three sides, will accommodate about 10,000 spectators a day. It will have twenty-one bays or boxes of thirty-two feet each, and each bay will contain lounges, settees, easy chairs and refreshment tables.

The promenade floor will be covered with 5,000 square yards of imitation green grass carpet measuring in length two and a half miles. In a Suffolk village 260 men are at present engaged in making this artificial grass walk.

Three thousand Crimson Rambler roses in pots will trail over a lattice round the promenade, and its background will be hundreds of tall trees, which will convert Olympia into a forest glade.

There will also be provided 2,000 palms, each between twenty-five and thirty feet in height, as well as a large number of full grown trees. Fifty two-horse vans will carry to Olympia the 198,000 square feet of fresh turf to be laid down in the arena.

Part of the decoration scheme will require two and a half miles of gauze and five miles of scenic canvas.

The show this year will be notable by the practical absentation of American exhibitors. Even Mr A. G Vanderbilt, one of the enthusiastic promoters, has decided not to exhibit, but will content himself in the part of judge. Walter Winans, to whom the idea of the show really belongs, will practically be the only big American exhibitor, but in England he is regarded by virtue of his long residence abroad not as an American.

SCENE AT DENVER AUDITORIUM AS CROWDS GATHER FOR DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

VALUE OF CRUISE.

Tomorrow our mighty fleet of battleships starts on the second leg of its journey around the world. It will leave San Francisco and go direct to Honolulu to inspire Americans there with a fresh feeling of pride and patriotism for the land of their flag. Thence it will go to Australia and to our possessions in the Philippines, ere it begins to make the vast half-circle of Asia from Formosa strait to the Gulf of Suez. Will it become the guest of many nations on the way, and will it bear to them all a visible message of the power and wealth and glory of the nation whose flags fly at its mastheads? Will it have a mighty moral effect on the "hordes of Asia" and put into their hearts that fear and awe and respect for the men of America which they have paid to the overlords that have gone out to them from Britain since the days of the East India company?

We cannot tell. These things rest with the powers that control our destinies. But this thing we do know: that from Quinhon, on the Cochin-China coast, past the muddy mouths of the Irawaddy and down the foot of Hindustan and even unto the burned Arabian plains around Mount Hor, there will be men from home—missionaries, women and little children, expatriates, wanderers, and they who toil in the desolate places of earth in the cause of the Stars and Stripes—who will fall upon their knees and thank God with moisture in their eyes when they gaze upon those stately white ships from the land they love. The sight of his country's flag, of his country's fleet of might and honor, is a God-given glory to the patriot sojourning in a strange country. Some of those devoted men and women have never seen that sight since they sailed from the home port.

After all, the great value of our battleships' trip around Asia is not the training it will give to the fighting men of our navy. Nor is it the stern effect they may produce upon foreign governments and people. Its greatest worth is to be found in what new enthusiasm and comprehension of the United States the sight of her fleet of battleships will give to our possessions in the far Orient. They will see our ships as the mighty harbingers of a great peace, an arm strong for their protection and zealous in their interests. It will bind closer to us those dependent peoples of our tropical islands and inspire in them a warmer patriotism, a larger pride and a full sense of what it means to them to be part of a world power.—Washington Post.

CHINA TO BUILD NAVY.

China's awakening to its own necessities and the generosity of the United States are working together for what some day may develop into a striking display of the irony of fate. For China proposes that the $10,785,286 remitted to it by this nation shall be used as the nucleus of a fund with which to build itself a modern navy. Considering the exigencies of business and the frailties of human nature the possibilities are obvious.

The sum mentioned is part of this country's share of the $333,000,000 indemnity which China was ordered to pay to the powers following the Boxer outbreak of 1900. In comparison with some other nations the United States was moderate in its demands, although it originally asked $24,440,778. This amount later was discovered to be hugely in excess of all costs and damages, so that congress some time ago decided to remit the residue, nearly $11,000,000, with a possible additional gift up to $2,000,000 to China, as an act of friendship. Thus comes China's nest egg with which it has decided to start a navy.

Japan ruined China's navy in the war of 1894-95. China's present water-fighting apparatus consists chiefly of antiquated gunboats and torpedo boats, with four protected and four unprotected cruisers. The newest and best of these boats was built ten years ago and the oldest as long ago as 1883.

China has planned to begin building a few torpedo boats and destroyers on a domestic loan, but the American rebate now permits it to adopt a more ambitious program.—Chicago News.

GREAT ENTHUSIASM OVER FIRST TRIAL

Vanderbilt's Trial Coaching Trip Made in Merry England Recently.

"I should think there never has been such enthusiasm over a coaching trip displayed before," said Alfred G. Vanderbilt to the New York World correspondent as he drove the coach Meteor into Brighton, England, the other evening from London. "I cannot understand it. This trip, which was only a rehearsal, shows how popular the stage-coach must be still. I never expected anything like this. It has stirred me deeply.

"This has been one of the greatest days of my life. I have been longing for it a whole year, but never imagined it would be anything like this."

The trip from London was only a trial, so the Venture was not pulled out. The journey was made on the Meteor, an old English road coach, with a small party.

An enormous crowd gathered outside the Berkeley hotel, in London, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon to see Mr. Vanderbilt drive off. People four deep lined the route along Piccadilly and Knightsbridge and wildly cheered. The whole trip was like a triumphant procession, the inhabitants of every village turning out to cheer.

At the second stage Mr. Vanderbilt was so tired from raising his whip to answer salutes that he had to hand the reins to his manager, Charles Wilson Thousands lined the streets at Brighton, and a dense crowd was wedged in front of the Metropole to watch the coach draw up at eight minutes past 6 o'clock.

A useful thing about owning an automobile is how it makes a man economize on everything else.

The average man would rather win a dollar on a bet than a thousand working for it.

UNIQUE CHAIR FOR WILLIAM H. TAFT

Philadelphia Trades School Students Each Make a Section of Chair.

As a gift from the principal and pupils of the Philadelphia Trades school No. 1 a Morris chair of generous proportions and substantial workmanship will shortly be forwarded to William H. Taft, the Republican presidential candidate.

The chair is the work of boys in the pattern making department. Each piece entering into its construction has been made by a different boy, and in an effort to see that no boy was slighted in the work the pieces, though perfect in workmanship, are of unequal size.

No nails, screws or glue has been used in its construction, but so accurately have the sections been fashioned that they fit together to form a solid, unshakable whole. The removal of a king pin allows the chair to fall into fragments.

Made of solid oak, William C. Ash, superintendent of the school, guaranteed that the chair will bear any human strain which may be placed upon it. Its capacity is equally unlimited. It measures nearly four feet in width and is proportionately deep. At the top of the back rest the initials P. T. S. have been carved, and the whole work has been so perfectly finished that the chair will ornament even the home of a president.

Plans have not yet been completed for its shipping and presentation, but as soon as arrangements can be made it will be sent to the war secretary, accompanied by a letter signed by the principal and pupils of the school.

VISION OF SOULS QUITTING THE BODY

Doctor Says She Sees Two Souls Leaving the Bodies of Persons.

Dr. Rose M. Reading of Chicago, who has been a lecturer at the Bennett Medical college and at the American Medical college, recently asserted that she had seen two souls as they left the bodies of an infant of one month and of a man of sixty-five years, whom she attended at the time of their respective deaths.

A soul, according to Dr. Reading, is composed of a vaporous blue substance which appears much like cigar smoke. It rises from the body at death in a clearly defined shape, the shape being that of the body at death. It goes through the wall of a room as easily as cigar smoke passes through a lace curtain.

"What occurred was identical in each instance," said Dr. Reading. "As I was looking at the infant, suddenly I was dumfounded to see a vaporous substance, closely resembling cigar smoke in appearance and of a bluish color, rise slowly. In the case of the man I followed the substance even more closely. It, too, was the shape of the figure on the bed and passed through the air in a recumbent position."

OTTO RINECKER IS WANTED BY POLICE

He Disappears with Watches and Money.

FORMER PROPRIETOR OF BILLIARD PARLOR

Resides with F. O. Tuttle and Robs Members of the Family Before He Leaves the City—Traced as Far as Delaware—Items of Interest from Police Court.

Otto Rinecker, who has for some time conducted the pool and billiard parlor in the Cummin Memorial building, next to the Grand opera-house, is being looked for by the local police. Rinecker, who is a Swede, left the city, Tuesday morning, and took with him $94 and three watches which were not his property. Rinecker had been in the city for more than eighteen months and up to about three weeks ago conducted the pool room. Since coming here, he had made his home at the residence of F. O. Tuttle, of Carhart street. Tuesday the Tuttle family took a trip in the country, Rinecker declining an invitation to accompany the family.

Rinecker, who is an architect, packed his tools in a grip, Tuesday morning, and taking three watches and the amount of money mentioned, called a hack and was driven to the station of the C., D. & M., where he boarded the ten-o'clock car for Delaware. This was the last trace the local police have been able to secure of Rinecker and it is supposed that he took a train out of Delaware. The three watches were valued at $100, while $90 of the money was the property of Mrs. Tuttle's mother, Mrs. B. Killam, of Cleveland. The theft and disappearance of Rinecker was reported to the police after the return home of the family, and an affidavit was filed against Rinecker.

Albert Rue, who was arrested, Monday night, on a charge of stealing a bicycle belonging to R. G. Cheney, was given a hearing in the mayor's court Tuesday afternoon. Rue pleaded guilty to the charge and was fined five dollars and the costs in the case and sentenced to stand committed until the amount is paid

SECOND QUARTERLY SOCIAL IS HELD

Pleasant Affair at Epworth M. E. Church.

The second quarterly social of the Powell Sunday-school class of Epworth M. E. church was held, Tuesday evening, in the church basement. There was a fair attendance and an interesting meeting was held. Ice-cream and cake were served.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed that the class was in good condition. During the evening a number of the members gave brief talks, the general theme being plans to promote the work of the class.

AMOS HILDEBRAND BEGINS PROCEEDING

Wants Two Judgments Set Aside by Court.

CHARGES FRAUD IN PROCURING NOTES

Huber Manufacturing Company Is Named as Defendant—Life Insurance Company Files an Answer and Cross-Petition in the Suit Brought by R. H. Martin.

Alleging that the Huber Manufacturing company had wrongfully and fraudulently procured three promissory notes from him, Amos Hildebrand, of Morrow county, through his attorneys, DeGolley & DeGolley, filed a petition in the common pleas court, Tuesday afternoon, in which he seeks to have two cognovit judgments set aside and restrain the defendant from obtaining judgment on the three notes, which are for $460.-62, $186.36 and $150, respectively.

The plaintiff claims that prior to November 1, 1906, the defendant, taking advantage of his lack of education, sold him a separator and engine, accepting three promissory notes and assuming a chattel mortgage on the outfit. He alleges that the outfit was misrepresented and that it did not come up to the standard guaranteed.

In the suit of Ray H. Martin, administrator of the estate of Henry A. Martin, against the Michigan Mutual Life Insurance company and others, the defendant filed its answer and cross-petition in the common pleas court, Tuesday afternoon. The defendant consents to the sale of the real estate named in the plaintiff's petition and sets up a claim of $1,-500.

Charging her husband with desertion and gross neglect of duty, Lela I. Deal instituted suit for divorce from Metellus Deal, through Attorney J. H. Clark, Thursday. They were married September 30, 1906, and according to the petition the bride was deserted the following December at Maple City, Michigan. She asks restoration to her maiden name of Titus and $500 alimony.

About a year ago the trustees of the Marion circuit church of the Evangelical association of North America conveyed by deed its parsonage property in this city to Grant Key, who since then has transferred it to his wife.

The law provides that whenever a church sells property it must first obtain an order from the court. This was neglected in the sale of this property and in order to clear the title of any cloud, Michael Zachman and others, trustees, through Attorney W. N. Harder, filed a petition in the common pleas court, Thursday, asking permission to sell the sonage and to purchase another.

A PRETTY WEDDING AT THE SCOTT HOME

Miss Scott and Mr. Benjamin F. Blake United.

A SMALL COMPANY WITNESSES CEREMONY

The Marriage Service Is Performed by Rev. David H. Bailey—After Dinner Mr. and Mrs. Blake Leave for a Trip on the Lakes—Well-Known Young People.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Scott, of No. 331 Windsor street, Wednesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Ethel Evon Scott, was united in marriage to Mr. Benjamin F. Blake, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Blake.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. David H. Bailey, pastor of the Epworth M. E. church, in the presence of the immediate relatives of the couple. Following the wedding service dinner was served, immediately following which the bride and groom hastened to the union station, where they boarded a northbound Hocking Valley train for Toledo, where they will embark on a lake trip.

The young people escaped a shower of old shoes and rice by letting only immediate relatives know just when the marriage was to take place.

The bride is a young woman of most charming personality. The groom is an examplary young man with a large circle of friends. They will be "at home" to their friends at No. 726 Wilson avenue after August 10.

MURDER SUSPECTED BY THE RELATIVES

The Recent Death of Young Man from Martel.

Information received by relatives of William Hochstetter, the young Martel boy, who was drowned in Minnesota last week, arouses suspicion that the young man was murdered instead of being accidentally drowned. The authorities are investigating the matter and are anxious that some representative of the family be present. Thad Crissinger left Thursday to represent the family.

Donations Wanted.

The Woman's Relief corps held a meeting, Tuesday afternoon, with a good attendance. It was decided to hold an all-day sewing, next Tuesday, for the purpose of making some articles for the poor of the city. Donations are to be solicited in the way of clothing for the work that day. Donations can be left with Mrs. E. E. Brown, of north State street.

A Statement.

P. D. Moran and William Burch, a brother-in-law and brother of Elmer Burch, who lost his life in an accident at Owens, Tuesday, called at the Star office, Wednesday, and stated that the lad was employed in the Owens quarries and was sent to the place where he fell to his death by the foreman.

TWO PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH SOCIETIES

Mission Workers Hold Sessions at Church.

TWO INTERESTING PROGRAMS GIVEN

Various Phases of the Work at Home and Abroad Are Discussed in Papers Read by the Members—Lutheran Ladies Hold a Meeting. Other Church Society Notes.

The meetings of the Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the First Presbyterian church were held at the church, Wednesday afternoon both societies being largely represented.

The Home society opened its program with a song followed by prayer by the president, Mrs. C. R. Phelps. Mrs. E. L. Rubins was made leader for the month.

The topic of the program was "A Look Backward." "Notes From the Southwest" were read by Miss Genevieve Hummer. Mrs. W. H. McClain gave a reading on "The Ellenwood School in the Philippines." Mrs. E. Hughes read an interesting article on "A Look Backward from the Rocky Mountains." An interesting talk on "Mission Work in French Broad Church in North Carolina" was given by Miss Rachael Thomas. The program was followed by the business session, after which the Foreign society held its session.

The program of the Foreign society was opened with a vocal solo by Mrs. C. F. Church. The topic of the program was "Hainan and the Philippines." Mrs M Leonard serving as leader, gave an interesting reading on "The Real Question of the Philippines." Following a song by the society Mrs. Pauline M. Hummer gave a reading on "Medical Missions." "Work on the Spirit in Albay," was the topic of a reading by Mrs. S. E. Barlow. The program was concluded with a reading on "Nodoa Station" by Mrs. W. M. Jackson.

At the close of the meeting supper was served by Class A.

RICHWOOD PEOPLE PASS AWAY TUESDAY

Three Deaths in the Village and Vicinity.

Richwood, July 8.—[Special.]—Miss Rose G. Beem, aged forty-three years died, Tuesday afternoon, in Grant hospital in Columbus as the result of an operation performed upon her for cancer. The remains were brought to the home of her brother, L. C. Beem, here for burial Thursday afternoon.

Daniel A. Bigelow died at his home here, Tuesday morning, as the result of Bright's disease. The deceased was seventy-eight years of age and leaves a widow and a grandson. The funeral will be held Thursday afternoon. He was a pioneer of the town, having lived here nearly fifty years.

Mrs. Mary Hill died as the result of a complication of diseases at her home three miles east of Richwood Tuesday. She was ninety-two years of age. The funeral will be held from the old stone church in Delaware county. Among her children are Mrs. F. C. Smith, of Marion, and Mrs. C. W. Sloot, of Richwood.

POLICE COURT.

The law passed at the last session of the legislature, requiring that all automobiles be equipped with front and rear lights and numbers of a required size, went into effect, Friday, and after that day all persons in the city having machines will have to comply with the law or be subject to arrest. Chief Cornwell stated Thursday that the law would be enforced and that those persons who run their automobiles over the streets without regard to the law will be arrested and fined.

Each machine must be numbered in the front and rear and the numbers must be attached so as not to swing. The machines must also carry two lights in the rear, a red one and a white one to reflect on the number on the machine. According to the statement of Chief Cornwell, the rear light can be equipped with a red light at the back and a white light at the side so as to reflect on the number. The numbers for the machines musts be secured of the secretary of state and be of size to conform with the law.

HIGH EXPLOSIVE TESTS ARE MADE

The field artillery board of the United States army, which is stationed at Fort Riley Kan, has recently concluded one of the most interesting and at the same time thorough tests of ammunition for field artillery that have taken place in the United States For the past two years the army has been experimenting with a high explosive shrapnel and shell with a view of increasing the killing power of the former and the destructive qualities of the latter The ammunition used in this test which occupied a week, was the product of a German firm

There were many features of the firing which were spectacular and of great interest to the layman From vantage points on the reservation and safe beyond the danger zone the flights of the shells could be plainly heard and the bursting of the many shells could be seen as they hit about the targets or, striking them, tore them to pieces

The terrific power of this new ammunition was plainly demonstrated says a Fort Riley correspondent of the Kansas City Star and the tests which were conducted under the personal supervision of the members of the board proved successful beyond the fondest expectations

The first target to be attacked represented infantry in column on the march Eight board targets each forty yards long two yards high and of inch planking were arranged one after the other and twenty five yards apart Both shrapnel and shell were used on these targets from a distance of 3 000 yards The shells were exploded over these targets in order that the flying pieces would go downward After the first shot the targets were riddled like a sieve, showing what the chance would be for a column of troops moving in the open in the face of such a fire

Another type of target was a shielded gun and caisson with a caisson chest loaded with shrapnel and shell and with five dummy cannoneers at their posts The firing was begun from a range of about 4 000 yards with the artillery finally moving up to within about 2 000 yards of the target The rain of well directed shots literally tore the target in pieces It was set on fire and many of the shells in the caisson chest were exploded The cannoneers were 'killed' the dummies having been hit many times The object of this fire was to ascertain what protection there was afforded by a shielded gun and caisson

The third target on the programme was made up of two stone walls each six yards long three yards high and one yard thick It was assumed that these targets sheltered troops and the object was to destroy this shelter as well as to burst the shells over them and reach the troops assumed to be behind them These walls were razed in short order The second wall was destroyed by five shots of the high explosive

Corporal Edward Peterson of Battery C was complimented by the board for his remarkable marksmanship The terrific bursting power of this high explosive ammunition was shown on that days firing Pieces of shell were thrown half a mile One piece struck a man working in a stone quarry on the reservation with sufficient force to cut through his shoe and into his foot Another piece of the same shell struck a dinner pail in this quarry

Many a man gets it when it isn't his turn to furnish the amusement

ALFRED S SHRUBB STARTS A CONTEST

Running a Relay Race on the Deck of the Caronia Unique Affair.

Alfred S Shrubb the champion long distance runner recently arrived at New York from his home in Sussex, England accompanied by his wife and child on the Cunard liner Caronia He indulged in no training throughout the passage but near the end of the voyage he tired of the quiet inactive life aboard ship and arranged for a relay race around the main deck selecting as contestants four male passengers who boasted of their ability to run the gates on the main deck separating the second and first cabin compartments were taken down to make a complete course seven laps of which equal to a mile The race attracted considerable attention aboard ship and every passenger assembled to see it Shrubb without the slightest effort outclassed his fellow racers but when he had covered two and a half miles he stopped as the others in the race were panting fairly he said

Shrubb said he came to New York to make a trip through the eastern part of the United States and Canada and was willing to meet any man in a race from two to ten miles He will go to Boston, Buffalo Montreal Ottawa and a number of other cities in the United States and Canada meeting local champions Shrubb said his record for ten miles is 50 minutes 40 seconds He is anxious to try for a twelve hour record

Spring Dog Gerel

Oh listen close for the voice of spring!
Though faint and fine 'tis the fairest thing
That e'er assailed the ear
Chilly winter may do for firs
But wait till the pussy willow purs
And the cows lips lap the sap as it stirs—
A delicate thing to hear
But truest tone of them all to me
I love the bark of the dog wood tree

With marshes 'broidering a hundred flags
While every delicate cattail wags
What care I for city brews?
Each blossom blows like a faroff flute
And the wilder flowers the prettier shoot
While all the trumpet vines tendrilly toot,
Firming their honest hews
From a litter of leaves comes a sound—
Ah me—
The shrill bough wow of the dog wood tree

Convention Hall, Denver, July 10.—The night session of the Democratic national convention was marked by a demonstration in favor of William Jennings Bryan which left no doubt in the mind of anyone present as to the outcome of the first ballot for the presidential nomination.

The followers of Governor Johnson made a fair display of enthusiasm, but it paled into insignificance when compared to the wave of wild enthusiasm which swept over the vast assemblage when I. J. Dunn, at the close of a splendid oratorial effort, placed the name of Bryan in nomination.

The announcement of Judge Gray's name evoked little or no applause.

A small American flag had been placed on every delegates chair prior to the beginning of the evening session. This was the unmistakable evidence of the nominating session of the convention and quickened the interest of the spectators who early made a rush for the galleries, filling them to overflowing.

At 7 o'clock, however, there were few of the delegates in their places. They had lingered long at dinner, the slow-dying twilight of the Colorado evenings proving deceptive as to the hour.

A male quartette was an added feature of the musical program of the night session. They sang their first selection through megaphones and got a royal reception from the gallery throngs.

A Chicago band relieved the cowboy musicians who had served so loyally since the opening of the convention on Tuesday. The bandsmen of the plains, it was generally agreed, had earned their rest. They have been untiring in their efforts to entertain the multitude and the excellent quality of their music has been widely commented upon.

The hall had not cooled out from the afternoon session when the evening crowds began to gather and the heat promised an uncomfortable ending to the protracted sitting.

Rumors of another delay in receiving the report of the platform committee filled the air as the delegates assembled, and they prepared for another probable season of convention oratory before the important business of the session could be reached. The wait for the rap of Chairman Clayton's gavel was robbed of much of its tediousness through the efforts of the quartette, whose members sang popular songs and concert numbers at frequent intervals.

At 7:15 the galleries were completely filled and the majority of the delegates were in their seats but the officers of the convention were still waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions. The band in the gallery worked with great industry and when it struck up "Dixie" the demonstration that followed gave a glimpse of the scenes certain to occur later in the night if a nomination was made. The delegates, at the first notes of the old war song floated out sprang up and waved their flags. It was instantly shown that the galleries too had been provided with them an in an instant the convention hall was a tossing sea of fluttering flags. The scene even though the greater part of the electric lights were not turned on, was really one of the great beauty as the flags flashed back and forth, against the darker background of the crowd.

At 7:50 o'clock it was whispered through the hall that the committee on resolutions had finished its work and would, in a short time, be prepared to present its report to the convention.

It was just 7:50 o'clock when Chairman Clayton began to rap for order which he secured within the minute. Mr. Clayton recognized Mr. McQuiston of Pennsylvania who announced the selection of James Kerr as member of the National committee from that state instead of James Guffey, who was selected before the Pennsylvania contests were settled.

"Without objection the selection of Mr. Kerr will be considered as ratified," said the chairman and a moment later added:

"The chair hears none and the selection of Mr. Kerr is confirmed."

Ollie James of Kentucky, moved that a committee of three be appointed again to wait upon the platform committee and ascertain when it would be ready to report. The motion prevailed and Mr. James, J. Thomas Heflin of Alabama and F. P. Lynch of Minnesota were named. Mr.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN.
Who Again Earned His Title as Idol of the Democracy.

Lynch's appointment was the first recognition the adherents of Governor Johnson had received in the choice of convention committees

Pending the report of the committee of inquiry, Thomas P. Ball of Texas, was invited to address the convention.

Mr. Ball called out cheering when he said it was a great pleasure to address such a notable "ratification convention," and declared Mr. Bryan would be nominated because of the people of the states who sent their delegates here wanted him nominated.

Before the convention was called to order the crowd had assumed proportions that made it almost dangerous. A ticket of admission was no requisite for admission and inasmuch as everybody in Denver and all of the visitors were most anxious to witness a presidential nomination it was but a short time before all seats were occupied. In addition the aisles in the galleries and many of those on the floor were jammed so tightly that the people who occupied them were held almost immovable. The windows were packed with spectators who chocked off all circulation of air and made the atmosphere almost as foul as it was hot and the heat was intense.

When the crowd began to manifest uneasiness, Chairman Clayton, by way of diversion said: In November next we will witness in New York the Tammany Tiger drowning the Republican elephant. Therefore I invite to the stand for a speech a Democrat to a Democratic convention, Senator Thomas F. Grady, of New York."

Senator Grady was given a most enthusiastic welcome as he appeared on the rostrum. When he declared that the convention could nominate no candidate and adopt no platform that would not receive the united and enthusiastic support of the New York Democracy, he was given still greater applause and returned to his seat amid cries of "Grady," "hurrah for Grady."

Following Senator Grady, Chairman Clayton introduced Judge M. J. Wade of Iowa, "A Representative of the great Corn State."

Mr. Wade is the new national committeeman from Iowa.

"Whoever the candidates are, whatever the platform of this convention," he declared, "the thought that goes out from this convention is that honesty must be enthroned as the dominating influence of public life. It must be manifest by public officers and on the part of every individual dealing with the public, with corporations, or with our fellow man."

By the time Judge Wade had concluded his address the crowd had increased still further and the doorways were packed in such a manner which showed mismanagement on the part of the doorkeepers that was not far from criminal. All the doors were opened and no places in the entire building that was as impassible as the exists.

There was but one degree of congestion in them all and that was the highest possible. The only difference was that the more commodious they were, the more people they held. Just as Judge Wade finished his speech a woman seated in the rear of press seats fainted away. It was out of the question to carry her out through the jammed aisles and it was found necessary to lift her bodily over the railing of one of the boxes and she was only carried to the outside with the greatest difficulty.

The galleries with a profound ignorance of the manner in which the convention should be managed, broke in with cries of "vote," "vote." When quiet was restored the chair recognized Representative Ollie James of Kentucky, of the committee sent to ascertain the probability of an early report from the committee on resolutions. He reported that the committee would not be ready to report before midnight. He then made a motion that the rules be suspended and that the nominating speeches for presidential candidates be made, with the understanding, however, that no ballot should be taken until after the report of the committee had been received. The motion was adopted and the rules were declared, by the chair, to be suspended and nominations to be in order

"The secretary will now proceed to call the roll of states for nominations for the office of president of the United States," shouted Chairman Clayton.

"Alabama," called the clerk.

The chairman of that delegation arose and was recognized.

"Knowing that Nebraska will make no mistake in nominating the right man," he said, "Alabama yields to Nebraska."

"I. J. Dunn of Omaha, will speak for the Nebraska delegation," announced the chairman of that state, while the cheering continued unabated.

Mr. Dunn, who was to make the speech of the convention, in which the greatest interest was felt by the delegation and the spectators, is scarcely of middle age. His clean cut determined looking, clean shaven face is surmounted by dark brown hair, which owing to the emphatic manner in which he executed his speech with his head, was soon touching the center of his forehead. He spoke clearly and with a pleasing manner of delivery.

As Mr. Dunn proceeded, almost every allusion he made to the character of Mr. Bryan was enthusiastically applauded, although he had not yet mentioned the name of the Nebraska candidate. The plaudits, however, were not long continued, and their transient character seemed to promise that the record breaking demonstration of Wednesday in honor of Mr. Bryan would not when the time arrived, be equalled in duration, even if it proved to be of equal intensity

When Mr. Dunn declared that his candidate was the choice of the militant Democracy of the country the convention broke in with wild cheers. The ever-ready flags were tossed aloft and a roar of applause swept through the hall. While the cheering was at its height, a white dove was let loose from the gallery and flew across the convention hall, while the delegates hailed it with great enthusiasm and cheered as long as it was in sight.

Mr. Dunn brought out the name of "William Jennings Bryan" with intense dramatic force and the response from the great throng was electric. The delegates sprang up, the galleries followed suit and the demonstration was underway in a manner that for the time at least, promised to rival Wednesday's exhibition of enthusiasm.

A few moments after the cheering began an immense oil painting of Mr. Bryan was lowered from behind a monster American shield which had reposed over the chairmans desk since the convention began. The appearance of the picture raised the pitch of the outburst to a veritable pandemonium. It was not long then before the scenes of Wednesday's prolonged demonstration was renewed. The delegates poured from the convention floor into the already overcrowded stage. James Dahlman of Omaha, a Mryan leader, jumped to the secretary's desk and urged the throng forward. The state standards were grouped about the platform. Galleries and delegates were on their feet waving the thousands of flags and cheering themselves hoarse. Many of the New York delegates stood and cheered with the others, but the majority remained seated

Only six banners were missing from the states in the parade through the aisle. There were Maryland, Minnesota, New York, Georgia, New Jersey and Delaware.

Many Bryan banners which had been brought into the hall were quickly caught up and carried through the aisles. One of the largest being from the Monroe Club of St. Joseph, Mo.

The band in the balcony lent its share to the celebration of the Bryan followers and the blare of horns, the beat of drums and crash of cymbals could be heard above the din of the shouting hundreds on the floor and the thousands in the galeries.

The cheering swept the vast auditorium in great noise waves which echoed back and forth in a volume that increased and diminished alternately as the delegates took breathing spells to renew their vocal enthusiasm.

The start of the demonstration set a dozen photographers to work and the boom of their flashlight explosions at times fairly shook the great building, such an immense amount of powder was used. The explosions also served to fill the upper portion of the hall with choking white smoke, adding vastly to the discomfort of those already forced to breathe the heavy atmosphere of the upper strata.

A feature of the demonstration never before part of a national convention was that the greater part of the cheering and uproar was distinctly heard by the candidate at his home, 500 miles away, a telephone to which was attached an immense megaphone which had been placed in the hall, and Mr. Bryan at the other end of the wire was at Fairview, where he was able to hear the cheering in his honor that filled the convention hall.

"We won't go home until morning," played the band, and the crowd yelled its approval of the sentiment.

Forty-five minutes after the name of Bryan had ben mentioned, Chairman Clayton again tried to stay the tumult, but in vain. Another five minutes elapsed and he tried once more, but did not succeed even in driving the flagwaver from his own desk.

Mr. Clayton stood the invasion a few minutes longer and then bodily dragged the men from his desk. With uplifted hand he stood trying to restore order and there were increasing signs now that the outburst had about run its course. Half of the delegates, tired and hot, had resumed their seats. The more enthusiastic ones kept up the noise, however, the band pouring out tune after tune to add to the din of cheering, whistling and blowing of fourth of July horns.

Another measure calculated to cause a cessation of the shouting was the turning out of many of the lights in the cluster on the ceiling. This had a marked effect and a storm of hisses that was directed at the shouters from all parts of the hall helped the whole amazingly. At 10:20 when the demonstration's last cry had died away, Chairman Clayton directed the secretary to continue the calling of the roll of states. Arkansas passed and California yielded to Oregon. Ex-senator Gearin of that state then was introduced to second the nomination of Mr. Bryan.

The opportunity of the Johnson supporters came when the rollcall reached Connecticut, and that state gave way to Minnesota. Winfield S. Hammond of the latter state took the stand amid a considerable volume of applause to place in nomination Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

Mr. Hammond, although he was speaking to a mass of delegates who had conclusively shown their preference for another candidate, made a most favorable impression on the convention for himself and his candidate. The speaker, who is a powerful, portly man, with no surplus of hair, easily sent his voice to the farthest corners of the hall, and his speech was heard with marked attention.

That all the cheer was not yet killed in the convention was made manifest when Mr. Hammond concluded. The loyal sons of the North Star State responded with a cheer and a number of delegates in Massachusetts and Oklahoma joined in. A liberal amount of applause came down the galleries, but the noise was but a whisper compared with the terrific roar of the Bryan demonstration.

IGNATIUS J. DUNN.
Whose Oratory Aroused Convention to Outburst For Bryan.

Chairman Clayton was somewhat less tolerant in dealing with the Johnson shouters than he had been with the Bryan followers and commenced to rap for order while Minnesota was still on its chairs and in the floodtide of enthusiasm. The band also failed to respond to Johnson's name and sat silent in their places, much to the wrath of the Minnesota delegation, who sent to Chairman Clayton a complaint of partiality. The chairman promptly signalled the band, which played two airs. This seemed to satisfy the Minnesota delegation, and the demonstration had largely subsided within 12 minutes after it began.

While the Johnson cheers were slowly dying and the chairman was struggling with the disorderly galleries, L. Irving Handy of Delaware, was waiting on the rostrum to name as a presidential candidate George Gray of his state

When Mr. Handy had spoken for a few minutes he was interrupted by the appearance of the long-awaited committee on resolutions. The seats reserved for the committee on the platform had long been filled and there was considerable delay and much confusion before the spectators could vacate the chairs and surrender them to the committee.

After the resolutions committee had been provided with seats Mr. Handy proceeded with his speech He asked the delegates to give him close attention, as an off-set to the difficulty of his position in being cut short by the committee's appearance. The request was greeted with general applause.

There were calls of "time, time" from the galleries and Mr. Handy jumped at the erroneous conclusion that they came from some of the delegates. His ire was aroused and in a second, he changed from oratorical to conversational English.

"What's the matter with you?" he demanded fiercely of the delegates.

"What has become of your spirit of fair play? I have not spoken one quarter as long as the gentleman from Nebraska nor one third as long as the gentleman from Minnesota and you call 'time' on me. I am offering you the best proposition you'll get and I want you to listen to it."

Cheers greeted his remarks and Mr. Handy with liberal encouragement from the delegates he had unjustly scolded resumed his speech.

"Why heed the cry of passion when prudence beckons you on to victory?" demanded Mr Handy when another interruption came from the galleries—Chairman Clayton pounded for order.

"Hurrah for Bryan," came from a spectator.

"Oh! Shut up in the galleries," shouted the speaker who then speedily brought his address to a close.

Some of the cheering was heard when Mr. Handy had concluded, but there was no attempt at a Gray demonstration.

"Gentlemen of the convention," said the chairman, "I now have the pleasure of presenting to you the chairman of the committee on resolutions, Governor Haskell of Oklahoma."

The governor called forth loud cheers from the convention when he announced that there was no division among the members of the committee and that he represented them all, in presenting the report.

The platform was adopted without a dissenting vote.

LISTEN TO SPEECH

Day Session of Convention Held. No Exciting Features.

Denver, July 10.—On the third day of the national Democratic convention the doors of the convention hall were thrown open at 10:30 a. m.

Chairman Bell called the convention to order at 11:30 and prayer by Rabbi Samuel Koch followed.

Senator McCreary of Kentucky was recognized and presented the report of the committee on permanent organization. This report named Henry D. Clayton of Alabama as permanent chairman, and it was adopted unanimously. Chairman Bell introduced Permanent Chairman Clayton, who was the recipent of a flattering ovation from the convention. The applause subsiding, Mr. Clayton began his address.

Chairman Clayton was at this moment presented a large boquet of roses. Two girls in American flags greeted him with kisses. Cheering and laughter continued during the pretty little ceremony and a gale of merriment swept the hall, when some one in the midst of the kissing called out: "Hobson, Hobson." The little girls were Misses Irene, Catherine and Ada Smith, all of Denver.

Mr. Clayton called out first applause when, after thanking the convention for the privilege of presiding over its deliberations, he declared with emphasis, "This is a Democratic year."

The committee appointed to ascertain when the committee on resolutions would report announced that a report could not be expected before 7 p. m. A recess was then taken until evening.

Crazy Snake Is Good.

Muskogee, Okla., July 10.—Word received here from the Hickory Camp Grounds says that Crazy Snake and his followers are perfectly quiet and that there is absolutely no trouble that would warrant the state authorities in calling troops to the scene. The Snake band of the Creek Indians and negroes are holding their annual green corn dance, and Indian Agent Kelsey says there is no cause for alarm.

TAFT WILL DEVOTE WEEK TO SPEECH

Desires to Spend Time Quietly at Hot Springs Retreat.

HAS TALK WITH HITCHCOCK

New Chairman of Executive Committee Says He Will Announce Membership Within the Week — Newspaper Correspondents Win Exciting Game From Politicians.

Hot Springs, Va., July 10. — The coming week will be devoted by Judge William H. Taft to the preparation of his speech of acceptance of the Republican candidacy for the presidency. During that time he will not invite anyone here and would regard it as a favor if his friends would co-operate with him to make his seclusion in the mountains of Virginia as complete as possible during that period Up to the present he has not written a word of his speech to be delivered in Cincinnati on July 28. Not until it is completed does he desire to discuss the document with his friends. Before it is made public, however, he will submit it to a number of the leaders of the party in order to get their views upon it.

Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock of the Republican national committee arrived here, and after a short interview with Mr. Taft stated that he would not be ready to announce the membership of the executive committee or to make any statement regarding his organization for the campaign for a week. The selection of men for these places, he said, was a matter of importance, requiring careful consideration, and up to this time he had given it no attention.

Later in the day a committee consisting of Chairman Robert B. Reynolds, T. J. Moffett, J. Stacey Hill, William B. Mellish and John R. Malloy, representing the citizens' committee in charge of arrangements in Cincinnati on "notification day," July 28, arrived here to submit to Mr. Taft a tentative program for that occasion.

In the afternoon the statesmen remaining here played another game of baseball with the newspaper correspondents. Burr McIntosh of New York was drafted as their pitcher. Representative Burke of Pennsylvania was catcher, Frank Hitchcock, first baseman, John C. Eversman, second baseman, Myron T. Herrick of Ohio third baseman, Representative McKinley, shotstop, Chas. F. Booker of Connecticut right fielder, William Nelson Cromwell center fielder, Richard C. Kerens of St. Louis, left fielder, Senator Hemenway of Indiana, umpired.

Mr. Taft did not attend the game. The correspondents won by the score of 25 to 16.

Meets Death In Stone Crusher.

Marion, O., July 10—Elmer Burch, 15, fell in a stone crusher at Owens and was ground up with 12 tons of limestone. The wind blew off his hat and as he tried to reach out for it, he lost his balance and fell into the crusher, meeting the most horrible fate imaginable.

GREAT PHOSPHATE BEDS ON ISLAND

Latest Find on Island of the Pacific Surpasses All Discoveries in Past.

Nothing in recent years has contributed so much to increase the economic importance to the ocean world as the discovery here and there of great beds of phosphates. These series of new finds among the islands began about twelve years ago, when a British survey vessel, dredging in the Indian ocean, brought from the depths a piece of phosphate that was traced to the neighboring Christmas Island, an uninhabited rock where some hundreds of men now find employment in the phosphate works.

Then came even more noteworthy surprises. Large beds of phosphate were found on Ocean island, over which no country had taken the trouble to raise its flag; on the German island of Nauru, west of the Gilberts, and on Malden island, a British rock far south of the island of Hawaii. All these little islands had been unconsidered trifles in the ocean world, but now there is always a ship or two off their shores and the bustle of a mining camp on their small surfaces.

The latest find surpasses everything yet discovered, says the New York Sun. Makatea, only four and a half miles long and one and a half miles wide, is just now the most talked of bit of land in the eastern Pacific. It stands in the Paumotu group, about 120 miles northwest of Tahiti. The engineers who have been studying its phosphate beds estimate that it contains at least 30,000,000 tons of the richest of phosphates, the analyses revealing from 65 to 85 and even 90 per cent of pure phosphate. The island rises to 230 feet above the sea, has no lagoon, and the work of prospecting for more beds is not yet completed. Preparations are now being made at an expense of $500,000 to extract the deposits at the rate of 300,000 tons a year.

Phosphates have also been found on Niau and some other atolls of this archipelago. Such discoveries of great natural wealth in the Pacific are certain to stimulate more thorough efforts to ascertain the extent of the natural wealth which the myriad islands have to offer the world.

STUDENTS TO VISIT SOUTHERN EUROPE

Party Will Study the People Who Are Emigrating to This Country.

Ten students and a professor recently sailed from New York on the Austro-American steamship Alice to spend a year studying at first hand the home conditions and customs of the aliens who pour into the mining regions of Pennsylvania by the thousands each year. Edward A. Steiner, professor of applied Christianity in Iowa college, Grinnell, Ia., is in charge of the students, who are preparing themselves for work among the foreigners of the mining region under the auspices of the Pennsylvania Young Men's Christian association. The party will land at Trieste, travel through Austria, Hungary, Russia, Poland and Italy, covering much of the country on foot with packs on their backs and returning in the steerage with the immigrants. The expenses of the party are borne by various committees and groups of citizens in different parts of Pennsylvania. All communities in the mining districts of that state have long been wrestling with the problem of making good American citizens out of these aliens.

Professor Steiner, who is an Austrian by birth and has given much of his life to a study of this problem, believes that an intimate knowledge of the immigrant's customs, language and conditions in his home land is necessary for any one who wants to influence him in America. Misunderstandings due to lack of knowledge, he thinks, cause most of the trouble in the mining region, and he believes a year spent in studying the classes in Europe from which the immigrants come will prepare the students better than anything else for work among the foreigners in Pennsylvania.
